Pickets Tie Phones; U. S. Plans Action

NO LINE CRASHERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (AP)—America's vast long-distance telephone system was crippled seriously by a strike today—except for emergency calls—and a Labor Department spokesman said the government might step in if a nation-wide tieup in telephone service developed.

In Washington, the spokesman, who requested his name not be used, said government seizure of the telephone industry might be recommended.

Reports of effectiveness of the picketing on long-distance service varied considerably. However, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. reported at noon a 9:30 survey showed long-distance traffic in and out of New York city was only 5 per cent of normal because persons on duty were inexperienced and had difficulty routing calls.

Reversing an earlier decision to wait until Monday, installation workers formed picket lines around most of the major exchanges in the early dawn. In most cases, telephone workers were not crossing those lines.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10 (AP)—Eleven thousand telephone operators in northern California and Nevada were ordered today by their union to leave their jobs immediately, regardless of whether their local offices were picketed.

Supervisors and telephone officials were attempting to maintain service, but could care for little more than most urgent calls.

At Topeka, Kan., Paul Heinz, Shawnee county district judge, granted a temporary injunction restraining 12 striking installation workers from picketing the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. offices in "Tokepa and vicinity." The pickets retired when warned of possible contempt of court action. Telephone employes remained on the job.

The Ohio Federation of Telephone Employes called 7500 members, employed by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. off the job at noon. The action shut down all service except dial phones.

A. T. & T. said in New York 45 per cent of long-distance boards were covered at 8:30 a. m. and other figures at that hour were: Buffalo, 71 per cent; Philadelphia, 13; Pittsburgh, 24.5; Cleveland, 32; Detroit, 34; Louisville, 13; Memphis, 11.6; Chicago, 18; Kansas City, 12.5; Minneapolis, 28; St. Louis, 9.3.

The company said that by 9:30 a. m. 100 additional persons were manning switchboards here, bringing the total to 330, about 20 per cent of the 1600 operators who normally would have been at work.

A. T. & T., the nation's top long-distance facility, reported 13 of 14 major traffic offices picketed, the exception being Boston. Picketed were Cincinnati, Buffalo, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City, Louisville, Memphis, Minneapolis, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

In other cities long-distance calls through A. T. & T. are handled by toll operators or associated companies.

Phone Tieup Hits Hub Only On Toll Calls

Local service within the territory of New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. was unimpaired today but long-distance calls were on an emergency basis only as the full effect of the sympathy strike of equipment workers skipped New England.

Calls from Boston to all points in New England went through without delay despite picketing in Bridgeport, New Haven and Hartford. Those exchanges are within the area served by Southern New England Telephone Co.

No picket lines were established at any exchange of the N. E. Tel. & Tel., officials said. All operators were at their posts and union leaders said they would work even should pickets be posted.

Only emergency service was available to New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Atlahta, Chicago, Jacksonville, Fla., Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Dayton and Cleveland.

Delays were reported on emergency calls to New York or any points passing through that exchange.

The only persons on strike in the New England area were 20 installers of the Western Electric at Providence. The exchange there, however, was not being picketed and service was normal.

The decision to ignore picket lines was announced by Miss Grace Barry, president of Local B-1120, AFL, and Miss Katherine P. Holman, vice-president of New England Federation of Telephone Operators Union.

They said the dispute of Western Electric workers at Kearney, N. J., which precipitated the strike, was "too remote" to involve operators in this area. The same attitude was taken by Mrs. Muriel Cairnes, president of the Maine division of the NEFTOU, at Portland.

The strike did not interfere with operations of the Boston Stock Exchange since quotations from the New York exchange are received on private leased telegraph wires.

U. S. Living Costs Up Slightly in November

The drivers rejected an offer of 8 cents an hour, plus an hourly bonus of .02 cents.

NUERNBERG, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Army newspaper Stars and Stripes reported today that the charred bodies of three U. S. military government officers had been found in a half-burned house on the outskirts of Possau, near the Austrian-Bavarian border.

"Soldiers who saw the fire said there were indications that the officers were beaten to death and the house set on fire after it was drenched with gasoline," the paper said. It declared that an Army investigation already was under way.

The dead officers were described as a major, a captain and a lieutenant, but their names were not disclosed.

Navy Yard To Lay Off 5000 Here

Five thousand employes at the Boston Navy Yard in Charlestown and South Boston drydock will be released beginning Wednesday, the Navy announced today.

Com. Adrian H. Marron, Yard commander, said the reduction was necessary because of "insufficient funds to carry on work in the yard at wartime basis."

He said the layoffs would continue until Jan. 25 and be in accordance with Civil Service rules.

Trades affected will be shipfitters, electricians, machinists, welders and laborers. An undetermined number of women employes will be included.

Marron said he understood the same procedure was being followed in all Navy yards as expenditures are curtailed to a peacetime status.

All departments at Charlestown will be affected. There are now about 28,000 employes at both yards.

Asked if further cut-backs were in the offing, Marron said he did not know, but considered it possible. Peacetime high for employment at the yard was 3875 employes in 1939. Its wartime peak was 50,000 in July, 1943.

There are now about 1000 returned war veterans and the Navy said it was impossible to estimate how many of these would be affected by the layoff.

The yard has earned five Army-Navy E Awards and built 166 ships of 100 feet or larger in length since the beginning of the war. It has also repaired 4265 ships of all types, many of them hopelessly damaged in combat, but made fit to fight again.

There is no overtime work at the yards now, and only two shifts, one from 7:30 a. m. to 4:10 p. m., and the other from 4 p. m. to 12:30 a. m.

War Cost World 680 Billions

BASEL, Switzerland, Jan. 11 (AP)—The cost of the second World War was more than four times that of the first World War, the Bank for International Settlement estimated in a report today.

Second World War costs, borne by various world treasuries, were, roughly, 680 billion dollars. Converting the "1913 dollar" into a "1945 dollar" (taking into account the rise in prices), the cost of the first World War was placed at 180 billion dollars.

These figures, the report said, represent direct costs only, without taking into account the capitalized value of human life, the property losses, the loss of production, the cost of war relief and neutrals' losses.

Hub Priest's Prayer Over Suzanne Bier

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—The soul of little Suzanne Degnan was commended to her creator today with a prayer that parents everywhere may be spared a tragedy such as that which struck her mother and father.

"In the hearts of the Degnans this morning, there is no room for vengeance" upon the fiend who kidnaper, murdered and mutilated the six-year-old first grade pupil, the Rev. Neil Donahue, S. J., of Boston told the throngs attending the funeral service for the victim of one of Chicago's most horrible crimes.

"There is," he continued, "only a prayer for you mothers and fathers and the people throughout this nation who have been so kind, that you may be spared any tragedy such as theirs.

"With that same faith they will go through this life knowing that truly their daughter wil enjoy everlasting bliss in Heaven."

The Boston College High School Jesuit, a close friend of the slain girl's father, James Degnan, delivered the sermon at a "mass of the angels" in gray, modern gothic St. Gertrude's Church, where the Degnan family worshipped during their brief residence in Chicago.

The celebrant was Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Gerald Kealy, pastor of St. Gertrude's The deacon was the Rev. George Kearney, assistant pastor who, on Monday night, undertook the painful task of informing Suzanne's mother, Helen, 36, of her younger daughter's death. The sub-deacon was the Rev. William P. Murphy, assistant pastor.

The eyes of James Degnan, 36-year-old government employe, and of his wife were moist with tears but there was no other outward dispay of emotion during the ceremony.

Mourners, the immediate family and close friends, filed out after the benediction had been given over the casket and the cortege proceeded to All Saints' Cemetery on the outskirts of Chicago.

Police in plain clothes mingled with the mourners in the forlorn hope that the sadist-slayer might attend to gloat over the grief of the parents for little Suzanne.

Mourners, sympathizers and the curious filled the church an hour before start of the services.

Her mangled small body was encased in a white casket surmounted by a cross fashioned of pink camellias. The lid was sealed. Banking the casket were numerous sprays of flowers, mostly lilies.

Before starting for the church, the family prayed briefly at the casket in the funeral home.

Even as the funeral services were in progress detectives under Chief Walter Storms returned to the basement at 5901 Winthrop ave., where police say the 6-year-old kidnap victim's body was dis-

Leominster is enjoying unseasonably mild weather, and so, apparently, were the grasshoppers.

Rose Carlan Tells Court Own Story

Breaking down and sobbing uncontrollably, Mrs. RoseCarlan, at the request of Judge John W. MacLod, demonstrated with an old pillow today in Chelsea District Court how she had tried to revive her infat son, Ronnie, when she found him dead in her home last Nv. 24.

"I know it's an ordeal for you," the judge said, "but it will help us all. Won't you try and go on?"

He had suggested the demonstration after she testified she found "something wrong with the baby" when she came downstairs from her mother-in-law's apartment, saying he was anxious to see just exactly what she did.

"You can pretend there is an imaginary baby here," he said, pointing to the end of his bench. "It's too bad we haven't a large-sized doll here."

A court officer recalled there was an old pillow in an anteroom and hurried out to get it. In the meantime the judge questioned Mrs. Carlan about her testimony that she was afraid her husband would be "prejudiced by gossip" and think she had neglected the baby, as police contend in charging her with manslaughter.

Q—Why did you stay upstairs and leave the baby that long? What kind of gossip were you

The fire started, according to Melrose Fire Chief Field, from an explosion in the kitchen of the Lapham apartment. Chief Field said several explosions followed, feeding the flames with new fury.

Raymond Harrington, 22, Navy veteran of the Pacific, discovered the fire when he heard a child screaming.

He dashed into the first floor and aroused Norman Hamlin, his mother, Mrs. Christine Hamlin, 50, and a nephew, Jack Lilly, 11.

Hamlin and Harrington then ran to the second floor and rescued Linda. She had been unable to jump from the porch because of chicken wire put up to protect children from falling. Harrington told police each successive ex-

London GIs Get Mrs. F.D.'s Aid

LONDON, Jan. 11 (AP)—Nine GI delegates obtained from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt today a promise to carry to the United States their demand for quick demobilization.

The soldiers met Mrs. Roosevelt at her room in the Claridge Hotel.

Earlier, a crowd of 500 GI's had shouted for "Eleanor" in a demonstration before the U. S. redeployment office.

The nine delegates, led by Sgt. Henry Calo of Chicago, were taken by a diminutive bellhop to Mrs. Roosevelt's door. They rapped for about five minutes before she emerged and said, "I'm glad to see you all."

Glimpsing newsmen trailing the soldiers, she said, smilingly, "No publicity."

She conferred with the soldiers in her room for more than 10 minutes. When they left she asked them not to repeat the conversation.

But Sgt. J. T. Travers of Dallas, Tex., reported "she told us she would carry our message personally to the States and do what she could."

The soldiers left messages requesting appointments tomorrow with Sens. Connally (D.) of Texas and Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan, also U. S. delegates to the United Nations Assembly.

Travers said the soldiers planned to demonstrate in front of Army redeployment headquarters "every day until we get an answer" to a four-point petition demanding speedup.

The petition presented a plan for immediate shipment of all men with 50 to 54 points, and making those with 18 months of service eligible for release May 1.

After a 15-minute session with Maj. J. B. Campbell, redeployment officer, Travers told the crowd Campbell had explained delays were caused by Atlantic gales which damaged transports.

The group grumbled, booed and shouted, "Nuts."

Another sergeant in the middle of the crowd shouted:

"You know who we got on our side, don't you?"

"Eleanor!" roared the soldiers.

GI's Around World Flay Demobilization Delay

All over the world the mass demonstrations of American soldiers to speed up redeployment continued.

In Honolulu, Marines in the Pacific theater were ordered not to stage any more mass demonstrations. The order cancelled a meeting scheduled for last night at Camp Catlin, near Pearl Harbor.

In Washington, GI's were asking that Gen. Eisenhower divulge Army plans for demobilization. House and Senate action loomed.

In Frankfort, Germany, a third mass meeting was planned for tonight after a thousand paraders booed the names of War Secretary Patterson and Gen. McNarney.

A petition protesting the slowness of demobilization was signed by 2500 GI's in Berlin and forwarded to Congress.

In India a committee of soldiers was delegated by a mass meeting of 5000 to forward complaints to Washington.

War Sec. Patterson was reported from Tokyo to have said no Russian or Chinese troops would join in Japanese occupation, hence the need for GI's.

Curley Case Rests; Hub Banker Heard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—The defense for three former officials of Engineers Group, Inc., accused of mail fraud rested today after a statement by counsel for James M. Curley, a defendant, that "we are ready to go to the jury right now."

Only eight witnesses were called by the defense. All were character witnesses in behalf of Donald Wakefield Smith, former member of the National Labor Relations Board.

Defendant with Smith and Curley, Democratic Congressman from Massachusetts and mayor of Boston, is James G. Fuller, who is serving a five-year sentence on conviction of sending fraudulent securities through the mail.

Attorneys conferred with Justice James M. Proctor on the procedure. It is expected the trial will be completed next week.

Witnesses who testified Smith had a very high reputation were called after the government rested its case with the reading of a transcript of proceedings in a Boston municipal court in which Curley had testified he had received $3500 from an official of Engineers Group. He later identified the official as Fuller, but said that in the transaction he was "only acting as an agent or messenger."

The defense contends that this was Curley's personal transaction.

Albert P. Hill, treasurer of the Hibernia Savings Bank, Boston, testified that on Aug. 8, 1941, Curley brouht to the bank $3500 in cash to "pick up" a check which had not cleared.

The check, he testified, was signed by Irving Newcomb, Washington real estate man, and endorrsed by James G. Fuller, another defendant. This check, Hill said, had been put in by Curley to replace a previous check returned "with a notation that it had been altered." The previous check, the witness continued, had been endorsed by Fuller and Curley.

The second check was given back to Curley, Hill said, after the $3500 deposit.

U. S. With Big 5, 2 Small Powers Win UNO Posts

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

LONDON, Jan. 11 (AP)—Delegates of the five major nations and Venezuela and South Africa were elected today to the seven vice-presidencies of the United Nations Assembly as the meeting moved toward an almost certain fight over the small-country membership on the key security council.

Voting on vice-presidential posts brought a protest on the method of balloting, the second of the day. The posts went to the United States, Britain, Russia, France and China as well as to Venezuela and South Africa by acclamation. Britain protested a secret ballot should have been taken.

With Belgium, which has the presidency of the assembly, the countries providing the chairmen of the six main committees and the vice-presidencies form a general or steering committee.

The election of the vice-presidents came so late in the day the assembly deferred until tomorrow selection of the six non-permanent members of the security council.

The larger powers thus far have failed to agree on a slate. Australia was reported prepared to fight with Canada for a place.

There was talk Russia might back Norway instead of the Netherlands for a seat, for which the Dutch had expected big power support.

Earlier, Russia launched an attack on the secret ballot system under which her candidate for assembly president was defeated yesterday.

HENRY F. BRENNAN, City Treasurer

Henry F. Brennan, new City Treasurer, lives in Adair rd., Brighton, with his wife, Sarah, his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Moynihan, and their 16-month-old son, Richard. The Brennans' son, 2c Charles H., is a member of the crew of a PT boat in the Philippines.

A graduate of English High School, Brennan's first job was with a wholesale drygoods concern with which he was associated for 15 years and became manager.

For many years he was assistant treasurer of a local bank, and for three years was with the Reconstruction Finance Corp. in the loan administration division.

"I have always been interested in Curley, since my late father, Patrick Brennan, was a member of City Council, just before Curley became a member of the council," he explained.

In Curley's second term as Mayor, Brennan was one of his secretaries, and while Curley was governor, Brennan was appointed a member of the Schoolhouse Commission.

A past president of the Citizens' Public Celebrations Ass'n, he is one of its 25 members, and its work is one of his main interests.

"I have always felt that its work is very important, arranging the city's holiday affairs such as the Christmas tree on the Common, the carolers and the Washington and Lincoln birthday celebrations," he said.

Brennan is also active in Brighton, where he is president of the Faneuil Improvement Ass'n.

Mrs. Malcolmson Flouts Pappy's Financial Quip

RENO, Jan. 11 (INS)—Mrs. Lucy Malcolmson, who says Col. Gregory (Pappy) Boyington jilted her for the former Frances Baker, was stunned today by his assertion that she had not accounted for $18,000 of his money. She said: "He knows darn well what happened to his money. I not only can account for it but a lot of my own I spent settling Pappy's accounts and things."

She declared she was preparing a statement showing exactly what happened to the money the flier gave her in allotments while he was in the Pacific.

She added: "I've taken care of his kids and his mother and I paid all his bills. Nobody knows that better than Pappy."

Referring to Boyington's statement that his romance with her was by mail only, Mrs. Malcolmson asserted:

"If putting an engagement ring on my finger in Reno on New Year's Eve; if kneeling with me in church to pray for success of our marriage; if writing my husband to ask him to give me a divorce—if these are by-mail romance, all I can say is I am speechless."

Boyington and the former Mrs. Frances Baker were married in Las Vegas, Nev., last Tuesday—three days after Mrs. Malcolmson announced in Reno that she and the Marine aviator planned to wed after she obtained a Nevada divorce.

In a statement to newsmen yesterday, Boyington said he entered into a legal trusteeship with Mrs. Malcolmson in 1942, making her the guardian of his three children by a previous marriage. The children are now with his parents at Brewster, Wash.

He said he went to Reno New Year's Eve to discuss dissolution of the trusteeship, but wound up giving Mrs. Malcolmson what he described as a "sort of engagement ring"

The Marine hero insisted, however, he told Mrs. Malcolmson there would be no marriage.

Softly Flowing Fashion Lines Stress Venus-Like Figure

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Boston American Fashion Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—Wartime angles and exaggerated effects are not to be found in the Hattie Carnegie collection. Rather, with subtle insinuation, she takes the figure feminine and contours it softly from a nearly normal shoulderline to a slightly longer hemline. Save for the bell silhouette in suits which stresses the new feminity in clothes, with jackets that project slightly from the waistline, this designer's clothes achieve new fashion translation of the rounded Venus-form look through composite simplicity of design and a careful coordination of basic details manifested in the way she carries the collar into the yoke, the sleeves, the pocket, in the way she jewels a neckline.

Colors tell a vibrant story of the collection, viewed by 87 of the country's fashion editors at a special showing sponsored by the New York Dress Institute.

Fluently curved in silhouette are the Carnegie coats. The waistline is indented, hip fullness results from soft pleats and the shoulder line is smoothly rounded. The outstanding daytime coat is a dressmaker version of the Dickens top coat that accents the new moulded body lines . . . the exaggerated notch collar and the wisp-of-a-waistline.

Modfied fullness at the hips features her daytime dresses, which through simple hugging of the figure permit the figure to speak for itself, good or bad. And because of a new belt treatment, the waistline is a mere whisper wide, one feature of the new spring silhouette on which all of the top-flight designers agree.

For this season, Miss Carnegie introduces the contour belt . . . a wide, star-studded band that closely girdles the waist . . . a leather belt of gold and silver encrusted sash. And the open "U" neckline is much in evidence, too.

Scarves are dramatically manipulated as a pussy-cat bow at the waistline or as a panel on the bodice.

Her evening gowns are shimmering, bewitching costumes designed in a ladder of hemlines, from minuet to regency to viennoise. Climaxing the gala evening showing is an all-occasion costume in figure-hugging black satin.

She also forecasts the lavish use of jewelry for spring. Bracelets are everywhere.

FOR DINING—Here's a Hattie Carnegie creation with an open "U" neckline and embroidered gold belt. It's a pale pink dinner dress with diamond tucking for the bodice repeated low on the skirt, then released in pleats.

HELICOPTER LIFTS 18 PERSONS—While the fairer sex looked on in Bridgeport, Ct., yesterday, an Army Sikorsky R-5 helicopter was demonstrated for lifting ability. Speed and altitude records, with and without payloads, were claimed for the craft.

Propose Boost In State Bonus

Increased payments and removal of the six-month residence clause were provided for in proposed revisions of the State bonus law filed today in the Legislature.

Overseas veterans would receive $250 and servicemen with 160 days' continental service, $150, both in addition to the current $100 bonus, under a measure filed by Sen. Michael A. Flanagan (D.) of Lawrence.

A Senate bill called for payment of the $100 bonus to all persons credited to Massachusetts under the Selective Service Act, regardless of residence.

Place in Sun Fight Jails West End Man

Preventing a Roxbury man from keeping his place in the sun caused a scuffle which today brought Edward Rosenthal, 43, of Myrtle st., West End, a six-month jail term.

A jury found Rosenthal guilty of assaulting James S. Athens, 52, of Alpine st., with a knife. Athens said he was sunning himself on the Common when Rosenthal persisted in standing in front of him and blocking the sun. During the argument, Rosenthal pulled a knife and stabbed him, Athens said.

Somerville Women's Suit Near Verdict

The $80,000 suit of six Somerville women city employes for back pay was taken under advisement today by Middlesex Superior Court Judge Edward F. Hanify following arguments by counsel.

The women, all married, were dismissed by the city in 1938 but the supreme court ruled they were illegally discharged. They sought full compensation, plus interest, for the time they were idle before being restored to duty in October, 1944.

Spending Denied By Ousted Board

Members of the Boston board of recreation, ordered by Mayor Curley to halt its activities by Jan. 15 as an economy move, today denied they had spent exorbitant sums and predicted Curley, after further study, would again turn over to them control of the recreational facilities.

They said the statement they had spent $1,000,000 was untrue. They were given $154,000, of which $122,000 was spent and $32,000 returned to the park department, they said.

The board is made up of seven unpaid members, four appointed by the mayor and two by the school committee, with the chairman of the park commissioners serving ex-officio.

Members are Chairman Thomas J. Turley, Bernard P. Casey, Joseph V. Comerford, Ellen H. Gleason, Joseph Lee, William P. Long and Albert West.

TOKYO, Jan. 11 (AP)—War Secretary Patterson today assumed "full responsibility" for destruction of Japanese cyclotrons.

Asked at a press conference "who in your department ordered the cyclotrons destroyed?" the secretary replied:

"I will take the blame. The order went out under my name. I didn't see the message. The mistake was in not consulting scientists first."

Scientists who helped develop America's atom bomb protested at news of the wrecking of the cyclotrons. They said the machines should have been sent to the United States for study.

Hub Linked With Girl Spy's Plot on Montreal Airport

MONTREAL, Jan. 11 (AP)—The hitherto secret story of a German plot to destroy the Montreal airfield at near-by Dorval, jumping-off point for aircraft being flown to Britain, was disclosed today by RAF security police.

A Canadian girl, a stenographer with the RAF transport command in 1943 and daughter of a German mother, became a suspect because of the pointed questions she asked airmen with whom she had dates. Investigation showed she was living in a $175 a month apartment, although her salary was $90 a month and that of her mother $60.

The girl was questioned, but dismissed. She moved to the United States and later a parcel was intercepted detailing plans of a Boston ship yard, together with specifications of a warship to be launched there, and information about the Montreal airport.

The girl and her mother fled to Argentina, police said.

The following winter, many German prisoners of war who had escaped from internment camps were found in ditches near the airport and one told officials prisoners had orders to damage the airport if they could escape.

JERUSALEM, Jan. 11 (INS)—Jerusalem sources reported today one Jew was killed and five others wounded in disturbances yesterday at Beit Nabala, northeast of Lydda.

The unconfirmed reports said Arab workers stoned Jewish soldiers and workers at a camp after discovering the body of an Arab worker, missing several days.

Ads Can Foster U. S. Ideals, Leader Says

Advertising must sell not only individual products but the entire American system of individual enterprise, according to Charles Luckman, executive vice-president of Lever Brothers, who today addressed the seventh N. E. Sales Management Conference.

The conference, sponsored by the Boston Chamber of Commerce, will continue through tomorrow at Hotel Statler, with many of the nation's best known industrialists as speakers.

"Advertising can surely influence public opinion in behalf of the American way of life," Luckman said. "This is the next great task of advertising, and of advertising men and women.

"The American commercial system must be rehabilitated—and in just one place—in the eyes of the American public.

"Since the turn of the century," he continued, "American business has spent $30,000,000,000 in behalf of its virtues. Precious little of this has been spent to reflect discredit on American commerce. The public knows, even though it for the moment may have forgotten, the part that business has played in the progress of the nation.

"The way for industry to begin is clear. Let advertising proclaim the honesty of American business and the worthiness of its purpose."

The conference got under way with a welcome by William K. Jackson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who was followed by Dr. H. H. Maynard, professor of marketing at Ohio State University.

W. K. Jackson Charles Luckman

Dr. Maynard said market executives would make a mistake if they assumed that OPA reductions of wholesale and dealers' discounts would "easily and quickly pass away."

"There is real danger," he added, "that margins will be reduced to a point which will prevent proper service and an equally great one of going back to methods of sale established in the old days, which have not been revised to meet changed conditions.

"Accurate knowledge of selling costs all along the line is the only sound basis on which margins may be equitably established. Just as production was stepped up to new levels in war, so must sales departments meet the challenge by greater efficiency and greater economy. Tools which served well in the old days must be sharpened to be effective in the new era."

Another speaker, T. K. Quinn, president of the Monitor Equipment Corp., New York, said "development of larger and larger corporations is leading the nation to socialism."

"Independents," he said, "should work and co-operate with other independents if they hope to meet the threatening competition of the huge manufacturing and retailing chain organizations.

"Trusts and cartels are the result of unrestricted competition. Their sales cost advantages can only be matched by co-operative marketing methods among independent producers and distributors.

"National advertising and promotion is today a blue chip game and only big money can play."

Vet Killed by Blast, Body Recovered From Oil Tank

The body of a 29-year-old war veteran, victim of a mystery explosion in a 35,000-gallon underground oil tank at the old Plant Shoe Co. building in Centre st., Jamaica Plain, was recovered at 5 a. m. today by firemen from the tank pit, which had been almost completely drained.

Recovery of the body of Andrew Smith, 29, of Sabin st., Pawtucket, R. I., from the sticky mass of oil in the bottom of the tank climaxed a 12-hour search, during which two brothers of the victim kept an all-night vigil.

Cause of the blast, which rocked buildings over a quarter-mile area, demolished three trucks parked at a loading platform, and set fire to a two-story brick building housing the Boston Putty Works, was under investigation today by police and city and state fire officials. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

Smith's brothers, Napoleon, 38, and Roland, 45, both of Pawtucket, identified the almost unrecognizable body.

Dr. Joseph Laserson of Munroe st., Roxbury, a police physician, said the victim was killed instantly by the concussion of the blast before his body was blown into the huge tank.

Smith, a Navy veteran who was overseas for almost four years and escaped unharmed although he served on two ships which were torpedoed, had been employed about a week afraid of" A—I was only afraid of the gossip that might make my husband believe I had neglected the baby. I didn't fear any other kind.

Rose Carlan Tells Her Own Story on Stand

Q—Why did you write your husband about White? A—Oh, I wasn't worried about that kind of gossip, only that he'd think I hadn't taken good care of the baby.

Q—Why wasn't the baby in the crib instead of in the carriage? A—It was very cold in the house and there would have been drafts if he was in the crib.

Throughout her testimony, Mrs. Carlan was close to a breakdown in her iron composure. Her eyes were dimmed with tears and she bit her lips frequently and looked at the floor as she was questioned.

As the court officer arrived with the pillow, the judge turned to her and asked her to step to the bench and demonstrate what she had done.

"I picked him up and put him on the bed on his back," she said. "His eyes were wide open and - "

She trembled, sobbed and burst into bitter weeping. Judge MacLeod spoke quietly to her and then gave her a chance to compose herself. Then, using the pillow as a model, she showed how she had undressed the baby, wiped froth from the mouth and blew her own breath into it, worked his arms and moved his hips in an attempt at artificial respiration.

After listening for a heart beat, she looked up and again her lips quivered as she repeated her previous, unfinished sentence, "then . . . I . . . knew . . . he was . . ."

Previously she had told how she loved the child and had never neglected him and how she had ordered William G. White, named by police as admitting improper relations with her, out of her house last August when he tried to hug her.

White, who was adjudged in contempt for a brief time this morning for refusing to answer a question of Judge MacLeod, had testified he had visited her some 25 times at her home but that on only one occasion had he been alone with her.

H. also denied steadfastly he had ever told police questioners or anyone else that he had had improper relations with the defendant, as Lt. Inspector John J. Kirby of Chelsea police had testified yesterday.

He finally was purged of contempt after telling Judge MacLeod he was waiting for a dear friend in the doorway of the Carlan home on the night Mrs. Carlan said she found her baby dead.

After telling how she had loved her baby and never neglected him, Mrs. Carlan told of ordering White out of her house when he attempted to hug her last August and that she had refused to allow him back since. When he telephoned her, she said, she hung up.

She said she told her husband about it in a letter and then went on to relate her efforts to have her husband released from the service on hardship grounds. On Nov. 24, she said, she obtained letters from a priest, doctor and neighbor to certify the hardship and then went on to tell of the events leading up to her discovery of the baby's body. She was the fourth defense witness called to the stand, being preceded by her brother-in-law, Edward, and Mrs. Ida Casey, a neighbor, who testified they had seen the baby on the 24 in the afternoon and that he appeared healthy, and Capt. J. Stewart Rooney, defense pathologist, who said it was his opinion pneumonia caused the baby's death.

Mrs. Carlan was questioned by her attorney, former Lt. Gov Kelly.

Q—Do you realize you are testifying under oath? A—Yes, sir, I do.

Q—What is your full name? A—Rose Carlan.

Q—What is your address? A—It's 352 Arlington st., Chelsea.

Q—You are the husband of James Carlan? A—No, I am his wife.

Laughter swept the courtroom, with the judge and Kelly laughing most heartily.

Q—You have had two children by Mr. Carlan? A—Yes, I have.

Q—Your husband went into the service? A—Yes. He was inducted on April 17 and left on May 17 for New York.

Q—How long did he stay there? A—For eight weeks.

Q—What happened then? A—He got a short furlough. Then he returned to the camp it was Sampson and later came back here to do duty at the Hotel Somerset where he stayed until the end of July.

Q—You say he had an eight weeks' furlough from Camp Sampson? A—I do.

Q—Were it during that time that Ronald was conceived? A—Yes, it was.

Q—How long did he stay at the Somerset? A—He stayed until the end of August and during November was shipped Kelly interrupted with "Was shipped to the West Coast? A—No, to Richmond, Va.

Q—Did you visit him at Richmond, Va? A—Yes, I went down to see him there and stayed a week.

Q—Did you live as man and wife with him there? A—Yes.

Q—Where were your children? A—The oldest was with my mother-in-law. Ronald had not been born at that time.

Kelly said "I'm going to ask you a question and I think His Honor will permit my asking it. In any event, here it is":

Q—Are you pregnant now? A—No, I am not.

Q—How do you know you are not pregnant now? A—I can prove I am not pregnant as of Dec. 29.

Q—You mean you were not pregnant on Dec. 29? A—No, I was not

In addressing the court Kelly said: "I asked that question to clear up a lot of vicious and malicious gossip which I have heard bruited about and no doubt your honor has, too."

Q—Where was your baby born? A—At the Chelsea Memorial Hospital.

Q—Who attended you at your baby's birth? A—Dr. Maurice Gilbert.

Q—The same Dr. Gilbert who testified here today? A—That is correct

Q—Did you have any occasion to have Dr. Gilbert come to your house to treat your baby there? A—No I always brought the baby to him

Q—From the time that the baby was born until you found the baby dead in its carriage on the evening of Nov. 24 did you ever neglect your baby Ronald? A—I did not.

Q—Did you love your baby Ronald? A—I did.

Q—Were you present when that White took the stand? A—I was.

Q—Were you here when he said you had ordered him from your house? A—I was.

Q—What time was that? A—That was the end of August.

Q—Was that the only time he ever was in your house or with you alone? A—It was.

Q—Why did you order him from your house? A—He made an attempt to put his arm around me.

Q—After you ordered him from your house, did he try to get in touch with you? A—Yes, later he called me on the phone.

Q—What did you do? A—I talked a little while to him and when I found out who it was I hung up.

Q—Did you later notify your husband about White's attempt to hug you. A—I did.

Q—Bylelter. A—Yes.

Q—On Nov. 24 what happened? A—I called the St Rose Church and asked for a letter from the curate. I made an appointment for 1:30 with Fr. Scully. I then called to see if the notary public was open on Saturday I then got the baby and Jimmie dressed and went to see Fr Scully.

Q—Did he write the letter? A—No, Fr. Scanlon did.

Q—What was said in the letter? A—It said that due to the hardship in my case and my two children my husband should be home

Q—Did you then get a letter from Dr. Gilbert? A—Yes.

Q—And then one from some neighbor. Who? A—A Mrs. Godfrey.

Q—When you returned from the rectory you saw Mrs. Casey? A—Yes, I met Mrs. Casey and it was the same as Mrs. Casey said on the stand.

Q—Was the baby sick or coughing? A—No.

Q—Had it previously coughed? A—It had had a slight cough.

Q—Was any medicine given? A—Peneteo

Q—Did the baby have gum trouble? A—Yes, it was teething. I got some Dr. Handy's lotion and with my finger put it on the gums.

Q—How long did you talk to Mrs. Casey? A—About 20 minutes.

Q—Then what? A—I went to my house and left the baby outside and went in.

Q—Go on. What else? A—I fed Jimmie. Left the baby out for a while and then brought him in and fed him and then put him out again for about an hour and a half. That was about 4:30.

Q—What then? A—Then I prepared supper for myself and Jimmie. At 6:30 I gave the baby a bottle.

Q—Did you keep Ronnie clean at all times? A—Yes.

Q—Where was the carriage then? A—In the bedroom.

Q—Did you go upstairs? A—When I was sure Ronnie was asleep.

Q—Did he have a cough or a fever or was he sick? A—No, not in my opinion. If he had I would not have left him.

Q—Did you take Jimmie upstairs? A—Yes because he is not a sound sleeper.

Q—For what reason did you go upstairs? A—My brother-in-law was due home and I wanted to be there when he arrived.

QWho was there? A—Billy and my mother-in-law.

Q—What did you do upstairs? A—A Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien came about 9 p. m. Eddie came. Then Mr. O'Brien and Eddie went out to the store.

Q—Was there a party? A—There was no party.

Q—Did you leave during the evening? A—Somebody suggested that I get some records and a phonograph

Q—Then what happened? A—I went downstairs and there was a light on in the hall.

At this point Judge MacLeod asked Mrs. Carlan to use a pointer to illustrate her movements on a plan of the building which was in court. She indicated a point just inside the bedroom door, off the hall, and said "The light fell on the carriage."

Kelly then asked:

Q—What did you see? A—The baby's arms were in an upright position. The eyes seemed to be back in the head and his face was pale and white.

At this point the judge halted her and asked her to repeat it slowly.

She did, and added, "His face was toward the left side and a white froth was around his lips. I knew looking at him with the light on him that something was wrong. I shook him. His eyes stayed in the same position. His arms didn't move, either. Then I laid him on the bed and removed his clothing.

"I wiped the froth from his mouth and blew in his mouth. I didn't receive any response, so I turned him over, pulled his clothes up and moved his hips. I turned him over on his back and listened for a heart beat."

The witness here dropped her voice almost to a whisper and continued slowly: "Then, I - I knew . . . he . . . was (she did not finish the sentence).

Recovering her composure speedily, she continued: "Then I knew I would be missed upstairs as it seemed I was down a long time. So I got the records and phonograph."

Judge MacLeod interrupted: "Is that what came into you mind at that moment? A—Well, I thought of a doctor, but I knew the heart had stopped and the doctor would find the death. I was afraid of what my husband would think when he knew I was upstairs. He would probably be prejudiced by gossip. Then I brought the phonograph and records upstairs. I put it on the table and somebody put a record on. It was a recording of my husband's voice. My husband came in front of me and I thought of the baby downstairs.

Kelley then interrupted:

Q—What did you do then" A—I put my head down on the table.

Q—Did you cry? A—Yes.

Q—Did anyone say anything? A—Jim's aunt nudged me and asked if I was sick. I said I had a funny feeling that something is going to happen.

Q—What did you do then? A—I didn't pay any attention to the general conversation. It seemed hours. Later, my mother-in-law suggested I call a taxi for Mrs. O'Brien. I called a cab downstairs and then went up again.

Q—(By Judge MacLeod)—"Can't you give us more detail about what you did when you went downstairs? A—I went through the bedroom to the front part of the house to the phone in the living room and I called a cab. They said one would come in 15 minutes.

Q—Then what did you do? A—I told Mrs. O'Brien the cab would be here in 15 minutes.

Q—Did anything you did? A—Yes. I waited for the cab but it didn't show up. I went down to call another cab and the O'Briens came after me. I was afraid they would follow me in so I hurried and closed the door. I called another cab company. Mrs. O'Brien knocked and I told her another cab would be here in a few minutes. The door was closed and I thought they went away mad. They went away without waiting for the cab.

Here, Mrs. Carlan paused for fully a minute and not a sound was heard throughout the hushed courtroom.

Then she continued: "Then I went in the house and put clothes on little Ronnie and put him back in the carriage without little Jimmie seeing me. I drew the netting on the carriage so Jimmie would think the baby was sleeping. Then I undressed Jimmie and put him to bed."

Once more she paused before continuing. "Jimmie won't go to sleep unless I'm beside him. So I pushed the carriage by the bed and laid down beside him. Jimmie fell asleep and then I got up and walked the floor until it got light. Then I knew I'd have to hide the baby before someone came in. I knew Jimmy would be inquisitive if he couldn't play with Ronnie so I put the baby in the cabinet.

"About 8 o'clock Jimmie woke up. I gave him breakfast and dressed him. At 9 o'clock I went up to my mother-in-laws and stayed there a while. I thought she would get suspicious if I stayed long.

"A little while later I had dinner upstairs. I kept going downstairs off and on all day. At 7 p. m., my sister-in-law came to visit upstairs and then she left with my mother-in-law. I started downstairs and met a friend on the stairs who had been in the hospital with me. She came into the house for an hour or an hour and a half. She asked about the baby. I told her he was sleeping in the other room. She left and I put Jimmie to bed."

Judge MacLeod then took on the questioning.

Q—What time Tuesday morning did you put Jimmie to bed? A—I walked around. I went from the parlor to the bedroom and from the bedroom to the parlor. Then I went out in the kitchen.

Q—Well, did you finally lay down? A—Not for very long.

Q—What time? A—I just lay down and got up. It was late in the morning. I lay down but I couldn't go to sleep.

Q—Did that go on all through the night? A—Yes.

Q—Will you go on please? A—Then I began to think people would come in and ask me where the baby was. I knew the baby's death would not get my husband home. I knew the service would be told her the baby was gone. She told me to inquire if anyone was seen near the carriage or if anyone had taken the baby to their house. I went to Mrs. Casey and asked her about this. She said no. I went to 162 Arlington and asked them there. They said no I went out in the street and one boy said he had seen the baby a few minutes before. Then I went to the door toward Mrs. Casey's home There was a dry goods pedlar there and he said I ought to report it at once.

The court interrupted:

Q—And then you went to the police and told the story? A—Yes.

Q—There isn't much more, is there"

Kelly replied in behalf of his client, "No, I guess not, Your Honor, just strictly on the hoax."

"The events after that are just how she played her part, isn't that so?" said the judge. "Yes," Kelly answered.

Here, Mrs. Carlan broke down completely and sobbed for more than a minute. Then she continued:

"He told me I should get in touch with the Red Cross. When I finished talking I went upstairs and told his mother what Jim had said. She said to call the Red Cross next day and make an appointment with them. I knew if I didn't make that appointment the next day somebody might become suspicious the baby was not there.

"So I made the appointment Wednesday morning for Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

The court broke in:

Q What happened after this" A—I got the empty carriage out Wednesday afternoon and went up to my mother-in-law's because someone up there had gotten new clothes which they wanted me to see I stayed up there a little while and a boy came to the door He told me girls were fooling around the carriage. I went downstairs and over across the street I put back the covers Then I ran up to my mother-in-law's and told her the baby was gone. She told me to inquire if anyone was seen near the carriage or if anyone had taken the baby to their house. I went to Mrs. Casey and asked her about this. She said no. I went to 162 Arlington and asked them there. They said no I went out in the street and one boy said he had seen the baby a few minutes before. Then I went to the door toward Mrs. Casey's home There was a dry goods pedlar there and he said I ought to report it at once.

The court interrupted:

Q And then you went to the police and told the story? A- Yes.

Q There isn't much more, is there"

Kelly replied in behalf of his client, "No, I guess not, Your Honor, just strictly on the hoax."

"The events after that are just how she played her part, isn't that so?" said the judge. "Yes," Kelly answered.

This Is It

Loved Baby Ronnie, Denies Neglecting Him

Q—Any further questions" A—No your honor.

Cross-examination then was begun by Capt. Duggan.

Q—Previous to the 24th of November, had you ever had a doctor for your baby Ronald" A—Yes, about three months before.

Q—What month was that? A—In July.

Q—That is more than a few months before November, isn't it? A—No answer.

Q—So that between Nov. 24 and July you never had a doctor for your child? A—I spoke with him on the phone.

Q—What did you speak with him about? A—I spoke to him about the formula.

Q—You heard his testimony this morning that you spoke to him about the formula a couple o fmonths after birth. Is that right? A—Yes.

Q—But from July to November, you never did have a doctor? A—No, I called him on the phone.

Q—You told your counsel that the baby was well. How do you know? From all appearances he looked well to me.

Q—You heard the medical examiner testify that there were four distinct bronchities or pneumonias five or six weeks prior to his death? A—Yes, I did

Q—Would you say now that the baby was not sick? A—I didn't think he was sick He had a slight dry cough that came and went and he was fussy teething. It was a teething cough. I heard it described as a teething cough

Q—But you admit that he cought quite often" You are a mother. You could have taken him to a doctor at any time?

A—Yes, but he didn't seem sick enough to take to a doctor

Q—Do you know what the word neglect means? A—Yes

Q—What does neglect mean" A—You mean you leave the baby on its own You do not feed it or take care of it

Q—You say you never neglected your child. Did you neglect it on the night of Nov. 24? A—No.

Q—When you came down from the party and saw its condition did you neglect it then" A—I do not think so.

Q—Did you leave the child in that condition and never awaken what the trouble was? A—I left the body. I never left the child. If I did not believe the child was dead if I believed it was still living I would not have left it

Q—Wouldn't you say you consciously neglected the child? A—In my opinion, the child wasn't really neglected

Q—Did you call a doctor" You went upstairs without a word and got no medical aid? A—No answer.

Q—It was cold in that flat that night, wasn't it" A—There was one burner working. The other didn't work.

Q—Was it all the heat there was? A—The bedroom was shut off.

Q—The child was in the carriage on its back wasn't it" A—Yes.

Q—You saw the way it looked. You removed the outer clothing and took off and washed its slip and nightgown and laid it on the bed. A—Yes.

Q—And after you took it from the carriage and laid it on the exhibit (the spread) which left an impression on its buttocks? A—Yes.

Q—You heard the medical examiner say that when that impression occurred the child was alive" If the child was alive you left and went upstairs, didn't you? A—I thought it was dead.

Q—When you went upstairs did your conscience bother you" A—It wasn't my conscience, I was worried.

After qualifying, in direct examination, as an expert pathologist, Capt. Rooney testified he had listened to all the medical evidence and seen the pictures introduced and that it was his opinion the baby died of pneumonia.

Judge MacLeod asked him on what he based his opinion and he explained that it was Medical Examiner Brackley's testimony that the post mortem showed pneumonia of recent origin.

Q—But there were three prior pneumonias" A—Yes, these three, though, were due to infiltrations of food. The last was a primary pneumonia, of infectious type, with bronchitis and laryngitis.

Q—Regardless of the mother, whether she was here or in Kalamazoo, suffocation could have occurred under the conditions I have outlined? A—Yes, but that is purely my opinion.

Q—Is it or is it not a fact that a baby could have lost some weight in a considerable period after death? A—I don't think so in this case. I understand the body was in an excellent state of preservation.

Q—What is your opinion of the marks on the body, which you saw in the pictures and which were attributed to rickets? A—This child did not have rickets, and if it had they would not have contributed to death Rickets are due to a dietary deficiency, and all babies have suffered from them before we began to use scientific feeding, with cod liver oil and such. I might add that those marks on the body were more accentuated in color film than they would be to the naked eye

Q—How about asphyxiation? A—That merely means there was insufficient air to sustain life. It reconciles with my theory of pneumonia, the contributory and important factor. There was evidence the baby had rolled on its side and cut off its air level. Under such conditions a baby would thrash and turn and might get into such a position that it would not get enough air

Q—Well, let's get down to the dirt facts and strip away the medical verbiage. This baby had pneumonia and it breathed and turned in his crib and bored himself in clothing and probably suffocated. Isn't that true in essence and it is expressed what is in my mind? A—That's 100 per cent true, if you divorce the mother from it

Q—What do you mean" What bearing has that? A—My understanding in that there is a belief that possibly the mother was mixed up in this

"No, no" exclaimed Kelly, but Judge MacLeod hushed him and turned to the witness

Dr. Rooney was called to the stand as the first defense witness after the prosecution rested.

Among the final police witnesses were Mrs. Margaret O'Brien, Congress ave., Chelsea, aunt of Mrs. Carlan's husband, who testified she attended the party on the night Mrs. Carlan says the baby died.

She said Rose was there when she arrived and about an hour later went downstairs to get a phonograph and records. She returned some time later and appeared morose, the witness said, after leaving on a recording of her husband's voice, she testified, Rose stopped the phonograph and laid her head on the table

"I feel awful funny, as though something terrible was going to happen," she quoted her as saying

Kelly brought out that Rose had mixed in the party before going downstairs, but that she remained apart after returning

Dr. Maurice Gilbert of Shurtleff ave., who delivered Ronnie, testified he had attended the child for two months after his birth and found him a healthy and normal baby. He said neither Ronnie nor Jimmie, his 3-year-old brother, ever showed any signs of neglect

Mrs. Ida Kritzer, who lives in the same house as the Carlans in Arlington st., testified she had been asked on several

"IT WAS NOT ONLY A FLAGRANT VIOLATION OF THE COURT ORDER—IT WAS A CHALLENGE TO ORGANIZED GOVERNMENT ITSELF.

MOST IMPORTANT

SEVERAL BILLS for the construction of the urgently needed 5000-car garage under Boston Common have been filed in the Massachusetts Legislature.

Several more should be offered before the deadline today.

This is the most important thing that Greater Boston Senators and Representatives can do for their constituents.

The essential parking project will clear the city's obstructed streets, will save hundreds of important business and industrial establishments, and will preserve thousands of jobs.

As a matter of plain fact, the Senator or Representative who is responsible for the garage being built can truthfully say that he has saved the people of the city and State MORE THAN FIFTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR.

That is what the absence of the garage is costing them.

GOOD IDEA

REP. ENRICO CAPUCCI of Boston has presented legislation to tighten Massachusetts divorce laws, making adultery and impotence the only legal grounds.

Mr. Capucci reveals that he is acting on behalf of Judge Frank W. Tomasello, who long has felt the divorce laws, now including grounds of adultery, cruel and abusive treatment, desertion and confirmed habits of intoxication, are much too lax.

Millions of men and women will applaud Mr. Capucci's action.

Weary of seeing marriages dissolved in the mass production manner, with a frown or harsh word often being the reason for repudiating solemn vows and depriving children of parental love and protection, these millions are convinced that the time has come to scrap the Paganish statutes and practices which are scandalizing the traditionally Christian-minded Bay State.

BEST REMEDY

SENATOR SALTONSTALL has warned that a definite and determined attempt is being made with Government aid to spread industries to other parts of the country to the detriment of Massachusetts and the rest of New England. He recently said:

"We do not want the Government to move industries to other sections to help those sections. If other sections could produce more cheaply without Government help, it would be another matter."

Mr. Saltonstall also pointed out that a bloc of solid Southern States is attempting to change industrial freight rates to a great degree.

"Such altered rates," he said, "would work a real hardship on Northeastern mills and factories."

The most effective way to curb the activities of a self-seeking bloc is to create a more powerful bloc to oppose it.

New England has the material for such a combine.

We have TWELVE Senators — nearly twice as many as any other section.

We have TWENTY-SEVEN Representatives—a mighty force in the lower House.

If these Senators and Representatives stood together, worked together and voted together, we would cease losing industries.

And we might gain several hundred new ones!

YOUR ATTENTION again is called to our Bitter Campaign No. 9986D. As you may recall, this is in the interests of bigger, better and bolder after-the-wedding-ceremony kisses. At the Gene Markey-Myrna Loy wedding it suffered a discouraging setback. When the bridegroom eagerly sought to plant a lusty smack on the bride's lips she quickly turned her head and offered a cheek. The bridegroom, a naval officer, should have grasped the bride's head firmly in his two hands and swished it back where he could have given her the kiss on the lips he intended. That's what a Marine would have done. Miss Loy's attitude and Mr Markey's weak handling of the after kiss wedding situation were extremely discouraging in this department. However, though the incident has, figuratively speaking, left our head a bit bloody, it as yet is unbowed. Our Bitter Campaign No. 9986D will be continued with unabated zeal.

SIDELIGHTS: It was P. W. Joyce who said: "An Irishman before answering a question, always asks another" . . . The lowest form of loud radio player is the type that leaves the radio on when he goes out . . . "One stogie that you can't tell me what present movie star's father played the lead in the silent film, 'Where Are My Children?'" writes a Baltimorean. Can't answer this with confidence, but I will guess you are referring to Tyrone Power.

QUERY FROM A CLIENT: Q—You recently referred to your second wife. Were you divorced from your first wife? A—You have me confused with somebody else, lady. I mentioned no second wife. I have been married only once. And everything is going very nicely at our house. Nobody in my family, and I am including all my uncles, cousins and aunts, has ever been divorced.

ASIDES: When a woman is excessively jealous of her husband, it is a sign she is selfish and self-centered. On this all experts are agreed. Observed La. Rochefoucauld: "There is more self-love than love in jealousy" . . . A feminine subscriber of Chicago calls my attention to the following statement by Prof. Knight Dunlop: "Woman is more like the child in bodily structure and, therefore, is farther removed from the ape than man. Also, the skull of a man is more like an ape's than that of a woman."

SAYS HE: "Not long ago I received a letter from my 20-year-old daughter, who is a student at one of the great universities of the Middle West," writes a Californian. "It was a two-page letter containing approximately 500 words. In this latter my lovely daughter misspelled 15 words, none of which was of more than three syllables. Nothing makes so poor an impression as a letter in which a number of words are misspelled. It causes the writer to appear stupid, unintelligent and lacking in refinement. No doubt that is one of the reasons so much stress was placed on accurate spelling by the teachers of yesteryear. What is modern university education producing when it turns out students who are sloppy spellers and not even capable of writing a presentable letter?"

OVER THERE: In England two men found guilty of doping racing greyhounds were jailed for long terms at hard labor. That's what should happen to those who dope race horses in this country. This pair of English race racketeers confined their activities to events in which there were only five starters. They doped the three shorter priced dogs in a way that made them run slower than usual and then bet on the two longshots. Before being caught these two dopers had won the equivalent of $500,000.

OBJECTION: In a recent dispatch I noted Gloria Swanson referred to as "the middle-aged former motion picture star." I strongly object to this reference to Miss Swanson as "middle-aged." I don't like the sound of it. I grant you that as to the lady's actual age it might be accurate. But it does not match Gloria's appearance which is far from being middle-aged. She seems to be in her early thirties. And isn't a woman as old as she looks? As a matter of fact, several currently active feminine film stars are in their forties.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—The issue in the demonstration strike of both AFL and CIO unions in Stamford, Ct., was law or anarchy.

Westbrook Pegler

During a strike of eight weeks, machinists demanded a closed shop and pickets blockaded the doors to the Yale and Towne factory.

Gov. Raymond M. Baldwin then sent a detail of State Police to clear the way for citizens on lawful errands to enter the plant.

Charles E. Moore, the mayor, with plenty of police at his command, had refused to employ them for this purpose although they could have preserved the peace against disorders committed and threatened by the union.

Union executives, including some from other cities, had power to prevent disorder by instructing their pickets to obey the laws against rioting, assault and disorderly conduct.

These are offenses clearly defined by laws which almost all citizens willingly obey at all times. This, the union executives refused to do.

No labor issue was involved here. The labor issues had receded into the distance and were matters for negotiation. The question of mob action was not negotiable.

The issue now was solely whether the Mayor would maintain order and protect the legal rights of those who wanted to enter the plant. These citizens were threatened with injury or death by a blockade of organized thugs. A number of Communists had been busy in the background.

SOME OF the workers, after eight payless pay-days and a bleak holiday season, were sick of the strike and wanted their jobs back.

These faceless figures in the strife were required, however, to report on time and stand watches on the picket lines. They were on warning that if they refused to picket they might be expelled for "un-unionlike conduct."

And, if they insisted on their right to go to their jobs, they might be slugged with iron bars or steel chains or clubs.

Thus, normally law-abiding workers were compelled to become a riotous force by orders of an irresponsible authority claiming to represent them as voluntary members but with the admission that if they weren't coerced by the company they might not remain, or become, members.

The Mayor repeatedly had said that the company was trying to compel him to use the police to break the skulls of the rioters.

In actual fact, his duty was to use the police to prevent the rioters from breaking the skulls of law-abiding citizens and this he seems to have neglected to do.

The men who wanted to enter the plant were threatening no person. The threats came only from the picket line. It was to protect the citizens in their persons and their rights that Governor Baldwin, belatedly, sent State Police to Stamford, superseding Mayor Moore's local police, to clear a path and keep order.

The State Police arrested a few pickets. Order was restored. The law was made clear.

SMALL MERCHANTS of Stamford, not interested in the issues but with a stake in the maintenance of peace, were given their first real experience of the terror. They were asked to display placards in their windows sympathizing with the riotous force.

If they refused, they would be blacklisted and union members would be forbidden to trade with them under threat of punishment for "ununionlike conduct."

If they complied, they were inviting similar disorders at their own doors later and condoning organized thuggery as a method of adjusting disputes.

There is no legal right to riot, even for pickets. The right to picket is a right only to address the public by speech or publication such as pamphlet or placard. Under the Roosevelt government, however, the unioneers were encouraged to terrorize neighborhoods and cities. Local officials often illegally permitted them to do so.

Strictly speaking, even strikebreakers have a right to go to all such vacated jobs unmolested.

Most city ordinances forbid all persons to block or obstruct any public place or any approach to any place of business with intent to interfere with the free passage of any person bound on lawful business.

The Stamford ordinance so provides and so the mass demonstration in Stamford was a protest against law and government and in favor of rioting, assault and anarchy.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 11—If Harry Cohn isn't in a good humor these mornings he should be. He's just signed Don Hartman on an independent producing contract and any company that gets Hartman can just settle back and start clocking the laughs at the box office.

He has written some of the screen's best originals for Bob Hope and Danny Kaye and now he has authored an original race-track fantasy titled "How Do You Do, I'm a Horse." This isn't for Bob nor for Danny, but for Jean Arthur and Cary Grant.

Jean Arthur

Don's new story will bring Jean back to the screen after two years in which she has played fugitive from the cameras. Jean may be temperamental but she's always liked comedies and that title alone surely intrigued her.

ONE OF THE most sought-after roles in motion pictures has been the role of Isabel, the very cynical, worldly girl in "Razor's Edge." The role not only appealed to Katharine Hepburn but to many other actresses, many of them realizing the importance of playing opposite Tyrone Power. After testing and talking to, I don't know how many actresses, Darryl suddenly decided the fairest flower, after all, was right in his own studio, so he's giving the role of Isabel to Gene Tierney, who certainly merits it after her performance in "Leave Her to Heaven."

WELL, Cornel Wilde is the latest to kick up his heels and refuse to do a picture. Cornel, who always seems so mild, is on suspension because he refused the lead opposite Jeanne Crain in "Margie" for Twentieth. Well I'm saying out loud I am not taking sides in these fights. Wilde says the role isn't up to par. Twentieth argues they certainly don't hand an important director like Henry King a dud to direct in Technicolor and that the role is an important one. Meanwhile, another lad gets a break. Glenn Langlen, who played opposite Gene Tierney in "Dragonwyck" gets the part.

THIS IS WHERE I came in! Here we have Greta Garbo about to make a picture, but I won't believe it until I actually see her on the screen. A friend from New York tells me that she has told Eric Remarque she will play the feminine lead in his "Arc de Triomphe." That's the first picture Charles Einfeld and David Loew are making together for their new company. If true, it will be a feather in the new company's cap, but, as I said, I'll believe it when I see it.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: One of the funniest Hollywood stories I've heard is about one of our well-known actors who had a terrific crush on a certain girl. He gave her a mink coat and costly jewelry. Then when the spark was no longer there he suggested she let him have all her gifts to have them estimated for insurance. You guessed it—he "forgot" to give the presents back.

"Why, Mother! . . . You arrived just in time to prevent our first quarrel!"

THE WINNERS of the Photoplay gold medal are Greer Garson and Bing Crosby for the actors, and "Valley of Decision" as the best picture. This is the second year Greer and Bing have carried off the honors. While Photoplay is one of my favorite magazines, and I write a lot of stories for them and enjoy doing it, I certainly do not agree with their selection of the 10 most popular pictures. They have "Valley of Decision" first; "Anchors Aweigh," second; "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," third; "Song to Remember," fourth; "Meet Me in St. Louis," fifth; "National Velvet," sixth; "Thrill of a Romance," seventh; "God Is My Co-Pilot," eighth; "Hollywood Canteen," ninth; "Son of Lassie," tenth. What about "Dolly Sisters," "Enchanted Cottage," "Lost Weekend," "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," "Mildred Pierce" and others? I do agree with some of them—"National Velvet." I believe is one of the best pictures ever made, and I liked "Anchors Aweigh," "Song to Remember," and "Meet Me in St. Louis." However, this was the ballot taken in a research poll —so I'd better shut my mouth.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Bill Christy and Wanda Lee Hoefeld were married in Las Vegas yesterday. He played in "Kiss and Tell" and she's the daughter of Chris Hoefeld, well known Hollywood agent; Virginia Peine, who hasn't been in Hollywood since her marriage to Quentin Reynolds, is arriving here on the 23d with Quent; Florence Pritchett and Eddy Duchin had two dates in a row, which does what (?) to her reported romance with Robert Walker; Ann Miller's mother has taken to her bed, following the excitement after the announcement of her daughter's approaching marriage to Reese Milner, and Columbia's insistence that Ann make another picture; Atty. Jake Erlich of San Francisco has a son-in-law who's attracting a lot of attention. He's Guy Cherney, and he's making a name for himself on the radio. He is in Hollywood with his wife, Jake's daughter, Dorothy Ann; Ben Blue has had a fantastic offer to make a movie in Mexico City. The Mexicans understand Ben's brand of comedy and like him immensely.

PEGGY RYAN, who is not getting married, was glimpsed at Slapsy Maxie's with Dave Shelly; Bill Mauldin, the cartoonist, is attracting a lot of attention in Hollywood; George Cukor gave a small dinner party for him and Ruth St. Dennis; Bill is so good looking, all the girls have fallen for him; Joan Crawford sent all 84 members of the Hollywood Women's Press Club a gift with a personal card of thanks for choosing her as the most co-operative actress; Mrs. Raoul Walsh is asking for a divorce this week from Raoul; she says it will be all very friendly and she is not marrying Fred Perry, the tennis player; Larry Finley, West Coast ballroom tycoon, has sold his interest in the Casino ballroom at Ocean Park. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—I never could understand why our pessimists persist in believing that three is a number related to disaster; but then, why try to fathom the dolorous thinking of people who feel only the downbeat in life's rhythm? Three to me is a number, a funny one, sometimes a gay one. Think of all the threes. If you can think of any I've left out, send them on to me.

Dorothy Kilgallen

In music of course we have the three B's, a gigantic trio composed of Bach, Beethoven and Brahms . . . A tunesmith once captured the magic of the number in "Three O'clock in the Morning" . . . Johnny Mercer three'd it up with "Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe" . . . For nursery rhyming, where would Jack and Jill have been without a hill? . . . Which brings back school days and the three primary R's—readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic! . . . Ask Walt Disney what the magic three did for his bankroll—the Three Little Pigs . . . And the Big Bad Wolf recalls that three-word wolf call, Hubba, Hubba, Hubba!

NO COALITION of men in the history of the world ever equalled the famed triumvirate known as The Big Three—Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin . . . And Mr. Churchill's classic phraseology squeezed into three nouns will sum up war forever—blood, sweat and tears . . . Then there are what we consider the world's finest colors—Red, White and Blue . . . And the three letters that mean homeland—U. S. A. . . . What's a circus without three rings? . . . Or a race track without Straight, Place and Show? . . . Faith, Hope and Charity have stood the test as a trinity . . . And how dull a Broadway column would be without at least one triangle? . . . You must agree that Antony and Cleopatra would have meant little without Caesar.

ALONG WITH Churchill's blood-sweat-tears phrase there is MacArthur's classic, "I shall return" . . . And Lincoln's, "Of the People, By the People and For the People" . . . Edward Windsor's "At Long Last" makes the grade, and so does Julius Caesar's "Veni, Vidi, Vici . . . But let's away from history and on to the railroads. With choo choo trains, if not with Choo Choo Johnson, it's "Stop, Look, Listen" . . . For threes in song titles it's hard to top the Rodgers and Hart "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" unless it's Cole Porter's "Delightful, Delirious, Delovely" . . . For tomfoolery, take the Three Stooges . . . And in the show business Clayton, Jackson and Durante, the Ritz Brothers and Chico, Harpo and Groucho Marx . . . Girls? Well, first the Brox Sisters, remember? And then the three Boswells and now the trio of Andrews warblers . . . Liberte, Egalite, Fraternite . . . The Time, the Place and the Gal

BASEBALL HAD its immortal three in Tinkers, Evers and Chance . . . Modern Design: On Land, On Sea, In the Air! . . . Lindy's everlovin' three—lox, bagel and cheesecake . . . Gene Markey made it three honeys in a row—Joan Bennett, Hedy LaMarr and Myrna Loy, which is nice threesing if you can get it.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—Well, Sirs and Mesdames, here is Sen. Elbert Thomas of Utah, just engaged to be married—not even at the altar yet—and he is being showered with baby shoes.

This is very embarrassing to the Senator because he is only a blushing 63, with no immediate thoughts of bouncing kiddies on his knees. His bride-to-be, Miss Ethel Evans, a member of his secretarial staff, is also a mite flustered, being a mere slip of a kid, or 43 in round numbers.

Sen. Thomas

The Senator has received upwards of 200 pairs of infant footgear, which would seem, at first glance, to be an overabundance, no matter how enthusiastic for the future he and his betrothed may be.

Actually, however, the baby shoes are not being presented to him with any thoughts of his possible future ambitions. They represent a united, and apparently well-organized, protest.

The betrothed Mr. Thomas—no date for the wedding has been set as yet—is chairman of the powerful Senate military affairs committee. He has a tremendous amount to say about when our fighting boys will be brought home.

The baby shoes are a not-too-gentle prod to get busy. In each pair of shoes is a note. The words vary but the thought is always the same—

"Bring my Daddy home," "I miss my Daddy," "Bring my Daddy back or my Mommy will not vote for you," "You are at home—why isn't my Daddy at home, too?"

THE SENDERS all identify themselves as members of the "Bring Back Daddy Club." Judging by the sizes of the shoes, most of the tots would seem to be a trifle immature to be well-known clubmen and clubwomen, but they insist they are club members in good standing.

The movement apparently started in Wisconsin, but has now spread to Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Utah and other Western and Mid-Western states.

So many have arrived that Sen. Thomas is no longer able to keep them in his office, even if he wished to. He is sending them all to the offices of the military affairs committee, where Rulon Rasmussen, assistant clerk, is slowly going stark batty trying to find places to store them. Already the suite looks like a cross between a general store and a Salvation Army depot.

"When I took this job," said Mr. Rasmussen, "I had no idea I would be going into the wholesale infants' shoe business, too."

Sen. Thomas refuses to be amused.

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"So that's what he meant when he said he had a gun for me!"

"We are doing everything possible to get the boys home," he said. "We are in constant huddles with the Army and Navy. Military requirements have to be met. We just can't bring back everybody at once.

"There is no member of Congress who wouldn't like to see all our boys home, right away. Constituents are on their necks day and night. The pressure is unbelievable. Mail from wives, mothers and sweethearts demanding that their men be brought home is running to almost 100,000 letters daily.

"I know it is hard to make womenfolks understand the problem—particularly women who see other women's menfolks coming back while theirs are still held overseas. But we are moving as fast as is humanly possible."

SEN. THOMAS said the shower of baby shoes is really tragic.

"Many of the shoes we have received are in good, even excellent condition," he said. "It is a shame that children should be deprived of them just so their mothers could make this ridiculous, and utterly useless, gesture."

The Senator said the shoes will not be allowed to go to waste, however, adding:

"We are making plans now to turn them over to charitable organizations."

WHILE ON the subject of Senator Thomas I would like to report that his second greatest desire at present—we will assume that his first is Miss Evans—is to obtain a new automobile.

He had a good car up to a few days ago, but now he has a pile of pretty battered junk. His limousine was swiped by one of the most brazen young criminals the local cops have ever encountered.

The Senator's auto was found abandoned on a downtown street.

Boston After Dark

WHO IS GOING to succeed Kid Zissell? . . . The black-market in everything is out of hand—in men's suits, particularly . . . The hock-shops are getting as high as $40 for a suit, without vest . . . As for butter—as for hotel rooms—as for potable liquor—as for real steaks—as for woolen socks—as for white shirts—as for nylons OR rayons (ladies' furnishings)—as for radios—as for automobiles—as for lower berths or drawing-rooms—as for children's wear—let's not talk about those!

VETERANS WITH "MEDALLIONS"—those precious tags qualifying them to operate taxicabs in Boston—are as discontented as many of their brothers overseas . . . The free-handed gesture of the authorities in issuing 125 additional "medallions," or licenses, seems to have been less considerate than it appeared at the beginning.

BECAUSE TO OPERATE a taxicab in Boston, one has to own a taxicab equipped with an approved meter to register fares . . . These meters once sold as cheaply as $4-$5 . . . At present, however, they are as unobtainable as two tons of butter . . . The few meters for sale in the restricted market which now exists get as high as $200 each . . . At $150, the precious meters are a real bargain . . . Taxi drivers say that the standard meter approved for use in Boston have not been manufactured since before the war.

WHAT TO DO about it? . . . Pamphleteers seem to have gotten action for the GIs overseas . . . But ol' mother Russia and her devoted sons here in the Army can be credited—or blamed—with the revolt in the armed forces . . . Can't our home-front fellow-travelers devote a little attention to our continental problems? . . . Their comrades in the Army are doing all right without further help, it is apparent . . . In short, Uncle (U. S.) Sucker this time is hanging on the ropes before the echo of the gong has had time to reach around the world . . . Isn't there some way to isolate Americans against their enemies in American uniform—civilian or GI—without us going "isolationist" in a world which should be our apple if we showed strength enough to shake the tree?

ONE OF THE MOST important officials in the Boston police force applied in writing for the executive secretary's job of the Watch and Ward Society . . . Willie Shore's best crack in his Mayfair heading routine pays tribute to Czar James Petrillo, the Santa Claus of the musicians, and goes this way: Harry Green, the Mayfair's orchestra leader, plays one note on the piano . . . "Stop!" orders Comedian Shore, as he turns to the audience with a smirk . . . "You have now heard $58 worth of Petrillo music!" . . . That beautiful young singer who is co-featuring Mr. Shore's current engagement is Dale Belmont . . . With "looks," a voice, timing and er—everything—she should hit the big-money before we have occasion to write about her again . . . You really should see this Willie Shore, by the way . . . He is a reformed dancer who can do elevations, allez-oops and triple-wings.

CONGRATULATIONS — belatedly—belong to Phil Troy, the South Boston kid who made a career of the game he loved—baseball . . . Phil is now assistant general manager of the Red Sox, and if he ends up at the head of a baseball club, it will be no more than his admirers wish for him . . . Lt. Com. Ranny Weeks, USNR, is on terminal leave in this, his home town . . . Ranny was vocal and on the radio officially against Hitler et al long before we went to war and before he was commissioned in the Navy.

RANNY IS HOME among his admirers with a record of fine service, and one of the few commendations from the Secretary of the Navy given to a public relations' officer . . . (The chore which won Commander Weeks his citation was a thesis recommending that the Naval Academy and the entire service, including the reserve, devote part of its energies to a course in training public relations officers . . .) Ranny's two younger brothers, S-Sgt. Sumner Weeks, (who was Air Gen. George Kenney's top GI aide) and Lt. Malcolm Weeks, USNR, met in Yokohama after two years' separation in the course of which each had corresponded with the other only through the postmasters of San Francisco and New York . . . Com. Ranny Weeks, incidentally, will be the maestro of a fine dance band when a Boston supper-room, now in process of renovating, will be unveiled to the public . . . The date of opening is uncertain.

THERE IS AN AMUSING story about the carefree and somewhat irresponsible wife of one of his musicians which Tommy Dorsey is telling . . . The musician complained to his wife the other day that the bank had returned one of her checks . . . "Goodie, goodie!" said she. "What'll we buy with it this time?"

eral occasions by the baby's crying, but on cross-examination admitted the child appeared well-nourished and healthy.

Mrs. Kritzer took the stand after White, purged of contempt, resumed his seat among the spectators in the courtroom.

He had been called to the stand after brief testimony from Mrs. Lottie Pine, also a neighbor of Mrs. Carlan's, who said she had never heard the baby cough and that he always looked well and healthy. Judge MacLeod ordered her to step down after she squabbled with Duggan over her testimony, compared with what she had told him previously.

Under examination by Capt. Cornelius P. Duggan, White testified he had known Mrs. Carlan since last July and had visited her home about 25 times.

He denied persistently he had ever talked to her about getting a doctor for the baby, causing Duggan to characterize him as a hostile witness. Duggan produced records of conversations between White and the police and began questioning him from them.

Calling his attention to a conversation Dec. 15 with State Police Lt. Cullinane, Duggan asked the witness:

"In answer to a question as to whether the child had had a cough, didn't you say: 'About two months, the kid had a cold, probably five or six weeks ago, she was upstairs with her mother-in-law and I got worried. I figured the kid was going to choke to death but he came out of it all right'." "Yes, I remember saying that."

A—Do you remember talking to Lt. Kirby, Nov. 28? A—Yes. Q—Do you remember Kirby asking if you had improper relations with the defendant? A—Yes. Lt. Kirby asked me that and I denied it.

Q—At any other time, talking to anyone, did you say you had relations with her? A—No, positively.

Q—Didn't Lt. Cullinane ask you on the 15th of December about having relations with the defendant? A—No. He did not.

Q—Why did you tell the police you had relations with her? A—I never said that.

At this point Judge MacLeod intervened and Duggan said he wanted to show Lt. Kirby was not lying when he testified yesterday that White twice had told police questioners of such relations.

"But this is a manslaughter case," the judge replied. "I'm not questioning Lt. Kirby's veracity."

"It looks like another red herring," said Kelly.

"Well, you brought it up yourself," snapped Duggan.

Kelly then began cross-examination and drew frequent objections for leading questions. Finally the judge said:

"You're making a good witness, Mr. Kelly. Let the witness answer and stop the leading questions."

Q—You never were alone with her except on one occasion? A—That's all.

A—You tried to hug her, what happened? A—Nothing.

"Mr. Kelly," asked Judge MacLeod, "if the witness testified he had improper relations with her what difference would that make?"

"I want to show, Your Honor, that he was thrown out of her house and said he would get even with her."

R. I. Boy Drowns, Hunt Twin's Body

FALL RIVER, Jan. 11—Police today recovered the body of Homer Riley, 16, from Sawdy pond and continued search for the body of his twin brother, Harold, Jr., believed drowned at the same time.

The boys, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Riley of Crandall rd., Tiverton, R. I., are reported to have left home yesterday on bicycles headed for the pond with their ice skates. The parents did not report them missing until this morning, believing they were with relatives.

Police recovered the body of Homer about 300 feet from shore. He was without shoes and stockings and coatless leading police to believe he had struggled in the water. His bicycle was in the water.

The other bicycle was on shore.

4 Medford Vets Appeal to ABC

Granting of Medford's only available package goods store license today brought protests from 18 veterans, four of whom appealed to ABC.

Those who appealed were Frederick Nyan and David Potts, Maj. Robert Noonan and Lt. James Dineen.

The veterans were supported in their plea by Ernest Chisholm, member of the Medford Liquor Commission, who advocated giving the license to a veteran among 31 applicants.

The license was awarded Eugene Reppucci on motion of Medford liquor commissioner Ernest Martini and with the deciding vote by Chairman Cuthbert Lowell.

SOME SKINS SHOW first signs of "TISSUE STARVATION"

"MOSAIC PAVEMENT" SKIN. A doctor's term for "Tissue Starvation" where skin is excessively patched, crackled and crinkled because of an advanced vitamin starvation.

ROUGHENED SKIN—possible anywhere on the body but most often found on thighs and arms—can be caused by a mild, chronic "Tissue Starvation" for vitamin A.

"TISSUE STARVATION" is producible by a lack of vitamins in the living cells of your body—
Its signs often appear first in Eyes, Skin and Mouth

TONIGHT, on your way to bed, give yourself this 20-second "physical." Run your fingers down your thighs, along your arms and shoulders. If you can feel tiny "bumps" or more than a few rough places on your skin, you may suspect a "Tissue Starvation" . . . producible by a deficiency of vitamins in the living cells of your body.

Vitamins are more than just something you eat—they're part and parcel of every body tissue. And if you have a shortage of vitamins, your skin may be the first place where "Tissue Starvation" leaves its mark. The patch of skin to the left above shows a condition almost unknown in America. But watch for the "Early" condition!

Of course, roughened skin may come from other causes besides vitamin deficiency. But "Tissue Starvation" is a frequent and basic reason. And advanced medical opinion tells us that thousands of American men and women DO carry some visible signs of "Tissue Starvation."

Eyes, gums, lips and tongues are other areas where evidences of "Tissue Starvation" may first appear. So help guard against this form of "Tissue Starvation" by taking One-A-Day (brand) Multiple Vitamins—A, B_1, B_2, C and D, plus Niacin Amide, Calcium Pantothenate and B_6 all in one capsule.

Single houses would cost not more than $10,000 and two-family homes not in excess of $15,000. Veterans would be given preference in buying.

The program was sponsored by Reps. Paul A. McCarthy, Somerville; Robert F. Murphy, Malden; Michael Skerry, Medford, and William F. Sullivan, Boston.

Sen. William R. Conley of Chelsea filed a proposal calling for $952,500 for new buildings and equipment at Chelsea Soldiers' Home.

Degnan

sected, and began their second search in less than 12 hours.

Sgt. John Ascher of the detective bureau and six other policemen scrutinized the basement last night, then went over the slayer's trail from the Degnan home at 5943 Kenmore ave. to the basement and to the four sewers in which parts of her dismembered body were found.

Chief Storms explained he is convinced somewhere along the death trail the killer left a clue which will reveal his identity.

Police admitted they were forced to start their investigation anew, having seen the collapse of what they regarded as several highly promising clues.

Two men who remained in custody—a drunk picked up because he aroused suspicion by mentioning the case, and Robert Groetzinger, 46, of 1017 Dakin st., former dentist, were to be released during the day, according to Capt. John Sullivan of the Summerdale police.

Groetzinger was brought into the case by Mrs. Margaret Perry, who identified the ladder believed to have been used in carrying Suzanne from her home Monday as one stolen from her yard in Winthrop ave.

Mrs. Perry told police she had once employed Groetzinger as a handyman, but had been forced to discharge him. Capt. Sullivan discovered, however, Groetzinger had been unable to walk without crutches for some time, as the result of having had his left foot crushed by a bowling ball while setting pins. This, the captain said, automatically eliminated him from connection with the case, for he could hardly hobble, let alone climb a ladder and carry a heavy child down it.

Still held was Mrs. Perry's son, Cyril, 22, ex-soldier who was seized because of a misconduct record as a juvenile. However, police checking his account of his movements said it seemed authentic.

A millionaire's son, questioned briefly after blood was found in his automobile, was freed. He had been hunting.

Meanwhile, the Civil Liberties committee charged that Janitors Hector Verburgh, 65, and Desere Smet, 35, had been mistreated by police as they were questioned about the murder. Smet, Verburgh and the latter's wife were freed when taken before Chief Justice Ward in criminal court for a habeas corpus hearing yesterday.

In a telegram to Police Commissioner Prendergast, Ira Latimer, executive secretary of the Liberties group, demanded the suspension of officers whom they accused of third-degree torture.

Detectives who questioned both men denied they had been mistreated.

Atty. Joseph A. Ricker of the flat janitors' union, however, said Verburgh told him he was handcuffed and strung up in such a manner his toes barely touched the floor of his cell.

Dr. W. Van Duine, who was called to the home of Verburgh's daughter, Mrs. Germaine Group, at 7001 N. Wolcott ave., said the janitor's wrists were swollen and he showed signs of complete exhaustion.

Janitor Smet, who lives at 5955 Winthrop ave., said ropes were tied over the upper parts of his and Verburgh's bodies and strung over pipes, suspending them.

He added: "Our wrists were handcuffed behind our backs for long periods. All we had to eat was coffee and sandwiches. Verburgh couldn't eat the sandwiches, so he had only coffee and water for two days."

State's Atty. Tuohy said the police would have been derelict in their duty had they not pressed their investigation of Verburgh and Smet.

Strategy of the continuing police investigation was decided upon at a meeting attended by Mayor Kelly, Commissioner Prendergast, Chief Storms and other high department officials.

A permanent detail of picked detectives is to be formed. Their efforts will be co-ordinated by Chief Storms, Deputy Chief of Detectives John Warren, Capt. Sullivan and Lt. Philip Breitzke of the homicide squad.

Mayor Kelly said he believed the police department had uncovered some worthwhile clues, but he did not look for immediate developments.

7 Hub Night Spots Reach Music Pact

The labor dispute between seven Boston night spots and Local 9, Musicians' Protective Ass'n, AFL, was settled today when employers agreed to accept union demands following a conference with Suffolk Civil Court Judge Francis J. Good.

The employers sought an injunction to prevent the musicians from striking to enforce their demands. Judge Good, following the settlement, continued the case indefinitely.

Firing Squad Kills Hungarian Traitor

BUDAPEST, Jan. 10 (Delayed) (AP)—Laszlo de Bardossy, former Hungarian prime minister who led his country into war beside Germany, died a traitor's death today before a four-man firing squad.

His last fanatical words—"God save Hungary from these bandits"—nearly started a riot in the jail courtyard where the watching crowd shouted back: "Long live democracy!"

He refused a blindfold and walked unaided to the spot where he died. But he shivered slightly while waiting.

No General Boost On Men's Suits, Coats

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—The OPA said today some manufacturers were withholding men's and boys' tailored clothing from the market as the result of a false report that a general price increase was contemplated.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles said OPA does plan a new price order, but it will not provide a general hike on suits, overcoats and similar garments.

plosion in the kitchen showered the child with oil and flames.

Lapham with his wife occupied a third-floor bedroom. Hearing the child's scream, Lapham climbed onto the roof of the porch and attempted to tear the wire away. With the help of the two veterans he succeeded and climbed down to the second floor.

His attempts to reach his other children proved futile.

Harrington and Hamlin got part way into the house and took Helen Jones to the street. They, too, were blocked in attempts to reach the children.

When firemen got into the house they found 3-year-old Delbert dead under his crib, where he had crawled in his childlike attempt to find safety. Carl, Jr., was dead in his crib, and Mrs. Lapham died in her third-story bedroom.

Fire Chief Field said when he arrived at the scene he found two of the youngsters running hysterically in the streets, their little bodies blackened with burns.

Apparatus from Wakefield, Malden and Stoneham was summoned. Hose lines were strewn across the tracks of the Boston & Maine Railroad and commuter travel was tied up for an hour.

Four ambulances were rushed to the scene and Frs. Joseph P. Burke and Francis A. Curley of St. Mary's Church were present to aid the rescued.

Among those forced to flee were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Comeau and their children, Walter, 5, Richard, 3, and Barbara, 2; Mrs. Christine Hamlin, her son, Norman, 28, and a nephew, Jack Lily, 11; Mrs. Nellie Keohan and her children, Mona, 19, Phil, 17, Ronald, 15, Robert 14, Elizabeth, 12, and Catherine, 11; Mrs. Hazel Muse, 30, her daughters, Marie, 4, and Patricia Anne, 20 months; Mrs. Margaret Harrison and two boarders, Mrs. Marie Graham, 55, and Robert Carey, 40. Thomas Webber and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Joslin.

The only thing that saved the entire eight apartment block from destruction, the chief said, was the existence of fire walls.

Natural Wrinkle In Artificial Nose

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Jan. 11 (AP)—Irving A. Goldman, dental technician, said today he had developed a plastic nose that "can be wrinkled and unwrinkled" by the wearer, just like a natural nose.

The artificial appliance was designed to aid persons disfigured by disease or accident. The nose wrinkles and unwrinkles naturally when other facial muscles are moved.

The wrinkling feature was achieved, Goldman said, by methods he employed to "cure" the plastic material by heating. The material he employs, Goodman declared, is a composite of various resinous substances used in dentistry—the basic material being acrylic resin.

TOTAL CALORIES FOR DAY 1045

WHETHER YOU'RE AN imbiber or teetotaler . . . whether you take one or more cocktails or highballs for pure sociability's sake is strictly none of my personal business. But it is my concern . . . since we're counting calories these days to try and achieve that spring fashion figure in 28 days. So we might as well warn you of the high-caloric danger of alcohol . . . and our admonition has nothing to do with any morals involved.

Drinking is a personal privilege . . . but it's a privilege denied in any restricted program of weight control. For alcohol piles up the calories faster than you can think . . . and when you're dieting and trying to drop that extra body baggage . . . who can be such a spendthrift with calories? They're precious enough as it is.

Since somebody raised the question . . . we're prepared to give the answers. There's more calories . . . 131 to be exact . . . in one dry Martini . . . than there are in 4 ounces of orange juice. There are almost as many calories in 2 ounces of rum . . . 169 . . . as there are in two average slices of roast lamb.

Here's the official caloric content of the popular liquors: 2 oz. rum, 169; 2 oz. domestic whisky, 167; 2 oz. imported whisky, 151; 2 oz. gin, 127; cordial glass of brandy, 68; the same quantity of benedictine, 88; one cocktail glass of dry Martini, 131; 4 oz. red wine, 95; 4 oz. white wine, 89; 4½ oz. champagne, 132; 1 oz. port wine, 53; 1 oz. sherry, 38; 1 glass American ale, 155; 1 glass bottled lager-type beer, 130.

There you have it. Alcohol alone won't pack the weight on . . . but alcohol plus your usual amount of food produces fat. Alcohol behaves in the body when used medicinally . . . but used as a beverage it creates three situations . . . and bear them in mind during your dieting siege when some solicitous and indulgent soul passes you a tongue-tickling tray of liquid teasers.

Alcohol gives you a tremendous appetite . . . burns up Vitamin B in the system . . . and if taken with other fluids distends the stomach. And if you're on a restricted food routine . . . these three things can't and shouldn't happen to you.

And don't think you can pass up the dinner meal but later in the evening sit around and sip cocktails in pleasing succession to put a fast one on your will power. You'll gain weight. When you drink . . . pleasurable as it may or may not be . . . you get less caloric-conscious . . . and before you know it you're reaching hungrily for some hefty nourishment. So what's the use of making plans if you only go through the motions?

Nor can you reach out for a soda fountain drink. There's sugar in that thirst-quencher . . . and if you're dieting, sugar is doled out in prescribed doses.

We'll be pleased to know how you're doing . . . or if you have any questions you'd like answered. But don't tell us you developed a sudden rebellion against self-denial . . . that it was too much of a hardship giving up a few choice things. If you did . . . start all over again . . . try, try again. The day's menus are so arranged they can be clipped and pasted in a scrap book to be honored and executed when you feel willing and ready to follow through.

Today's menu totals 1045 calories.

In tomorrow's Boston Evening American we'll print the menus for both the sixth and seventh days, since Sunday is no day to toss a good beginning to the winds.

Need of Used Fats Great

By MARTHA LEE

Household Editor

THE NEW YEAR brings promise of many good things but the first half of 1946 does not promise much that is new in the way of fats and oils. Expectations are that supplies of fats and oils will be 10 per cent below the pre-war years in the opening six months of 1946.

Salvaged fats are an essential ingredient in the production of hundreds of peacetime articles we've been waiting for, including nylon stockings, tires, electrical appliances, telephones, and automobiles. They are particularly important also to soap making. In consequence, each time you turn in a can of salvaged fat you bring a cake of laundry soap or some soap powder, or some other wanted item just that much closer to the market.

USE CHICKEN FAT

There's plenty of chicken fat available these days because there is such an abundance of chicken in the market. And since chicken fat more nearly resembles butter than any other fat except margarine, it is an economical practice to use it for cooking—in white sauce, for quick and yeast breads and pie crusts — and save the less palatable fats for the butcher. The proportions of chicken fat for pie crust-making are ¾ cup chicken fat to 1 cup of flour.

CREAMED CHICKEN

2 cups medium white sauce
2 cups diced cooked chicken
Hot baking powder biscuits
Paprika or minced parsley

Prepare white sauce with rich milk, substituting one cup chicken stock for one cup milk; add chicken, diced or cut in strips, and heat thoroughly. Serve on toast and sprinkle lightly with paprika or parsley. Makes six servings.

MEDIUM WHITE SAUCE

2 tbsps. fat 2 tbsps. flour
1 cup milk or stock
½ tsp. salt ⅛ tsp. pepper

Melt fat and stir in flour; gradually stir in milk and stir until mixture boils and thickens, then cook about 3 minutes longer, stirring occasionally; add seasonings. Makes 1 cup sauce.

BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

2 cups sifted flour,
3 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
¼ cup shortening
¾ cup milk (about)

Mix and sift dry ingredients; cut in shortening until well mixed and add milk, stirring until a soft but not sticky dough is formed. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead just enough to shape into smooth ball; roll lightly or pat ½ inch thick, and cut with floured biscuit cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet, ½ inch apart for a crusty biscuit and close together for tall, soft biscuits; bake in very hot oven (450 deg. F.) for 12 to 15 minutes. For less short biscuits reduce shortening to 2 tablespoons; for richer biscuits, increase shortening to 1-3 cup and reduce milk to 2-3 cup (about). Makes 14 (2-inch) biscuits.

PLAIN MUFFINS

2 cups sifted flour
3 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt 2 tbsp. sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup milk
2 tbsp. shortening, melted

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine well-beaten egg and milk, and stir into dry ingredients. Stir in shortening. Bake in greased muffin pans in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 20 to 30 minutes. Makes 18 small or 12 medium muffins.

Grand Water Softener And Body Fragrancer

CHRISTMAS IS OVER . . . you're enjoying all your gifts, no doubt . . . but if one of them isn't this delightful bathmeal . . . it's a good bet you've missed out and should get some for yourself.

A handful of this pale green meal tossed into the tub . . . charms the water into liquid silk and perfumes it like a fresh bouquet . . . taking the ritual of bathing out of the routine class and into the luxurious state. It is a special boon to women with dry skin.

A soft and scented bath will quiet your nerves . . . soothe your skin . . . leaving it as silky as a flower-petal . . . and you will emerge radiating the delicious fragrance of this scent.

The Romans . . . as part of an elaborate bathing ritual . . . set aside one room, the unctorium, in which huge jars of bath-oils and essences were grouped in stately procession for lavish use. After a series of ablutions . . . they anointed themselves . . . using a different perfume for each part of the body and for each of their garments.

For the name of this water softener and body fragrancer, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write Ruth Mugglebee, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Courtesy Tip

It has been wisely said that appreciation is a mark of civilization. And the expression of appreciation is the mark of a well-bred person. "Thank you," "It was kind of you," "I appreciate so much your thoughtfulness" are gracious comments that come spontaneously to the hearts and then to the lips of mannerly people.—MRS. BEECKMAN.

BE CONSIDERATE!

2 Cops Stabbed By Hospital Fugitive

Two Dudley st. station patrolmen were slashed today in a struggle to subdue and return a Roxbury man to Boston Psychopathic Hospital, from which he had escaped yesterday.

Patrolman Maynard Lunt suffered slash wounds of the ear, neck and hand while Patrolman Robert Bradley was stabbed in the hand by a knife wielded by the fugitive after they found him in a bedroom in his home.

Her Money Gone With the Wind

PEORIA, Ill., Jan. 11 (AP)—When a gust of wind blew a $10 bill out of Mrs. Beatrice Lopez's hand as she emerged from a bank, she had lots of helpers seeking to retrieve it.

Wind currents carried the bill high into the air, over several stores, back to the street and into the air again, many shoppers in pursuit.

Finally, the bill floated to the pavement and a motorist leaped from his auto, pinned it down and returned it to Mrs. Lopez.

CRASH TRAPS SAILOR

Charlstown police held a sailor off the U. S. S. Denver at Norfolk, Va., here on a 34-day leave. He was arrested when a stolen taxicab he was driving crashed and overturned opposite the Charles st. jail.

Tobin Calls for Hospital Aides

Emphasizing that conditions are now worse than during the war, Gov. Tobin today appealed for Red Cross volunteers to assist Greater Boston hospitals during the acute nurse shortage.

The city's hospitals are seeking help through the Red Cross, he explained, because there is a critical need for trained volunteers who can serve during daytime hours.

Women over 18 years of age and in good health may apply at Red Cross Headquarters, 17 Gloucester st., Boston, for information on classes now being organized for nurses' aides, gray ladies and dietitians' aides.

Honey of Chiller-Diller Pleases Loew's Patrons

By PEGGY DOYLE

"She Wouldn't Say Yes," the Rosalind Russell-Lee Bowman starring picture is the marquee-lure at Loew's twin theaters presently. But, believe you me, it is the unsung "My Name Is Julia Ross," the companion but by no means second feature, that you must catch.

Both are Columbia releases, the one a lavishly produced and frankly silly comedy about a rich and successful woman psychiatrist who could use a good psychiatrist herself. The other is a modestly budgeted mystery melodrama with a psychological twist.

"My Name Is Julia Ross" has no names for the marquee but it is a honey of a chiller-diller, taut and arresting throughout and custom-tailored to the tastes of the most discriminating of "meller" tastes.

Its cat-and-mouse story concerns a pretty, young girl who accepts a job as secretary of a seemingly respectable matron and her son in London and awakens from a drugged sleep several days later in a heavily guarded house high on a sea-washed cliff in Cornwall.

Nina Foch plays the girl, Julia Ross, with immense skill and range. Her wide-eyed terror when she discovers she is being used to substitute for the heiress-wife the son of the household has murdered and is herself slated for "suicide" is succeeded by calculating determination to survive. She reveals a surprising range of sensitiveness as she is defeated again and again in her efforts to escape.

Aiding her in building up breath-taking suspense are Dame May Whitty, as the apparently respectable old lady with murder in her heart and a patly maternal admonition on her two-timing tongue, and George Macready, as her batty, vicious son.

The aged British actress, amazingly unbowed by her 80 years, is truly magnificent in this sort of whited sepulchre characterization she does with such skill and freshness.

Vaughn Monroe Sings This Trip

Vaughn Monroe, always a Boston favorite, opened a very pleasing show at the RKO-Boston yesterday, and added his rich voice to the excellent harmonizing of the Norton Sisters, one of the better female singing groups.

Highlight of the program, aside from the fine music played by the Monroe orchestra, was Fred Sanborn, who is a comedian of the old vaudeville school. His pantomime around the xylophone, which he finally plays very well, had the audience in gales.

Sally Stuart is a fair vocalist, but the band was a bit too strong for her in the first show yesterday. That will undoubtedly be adjusted.

Band solos were played by Andy Bagni, who did a nice sax rendition of "Night and Day," and Eddie Julian on the drums.

Also on the bill are the Gerardos, a smooth ballroom dance team.

Ziggy Talent, the zany singing comedian, was especially good in a wonderful song called, "Josephine, Don't Lean on the Bell." The film feature is "Snafu."

Errol Flynn Excellent In Met's 'San Antonio'

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

Errol Flynn fans and those who don't care one way or the other are having a fine time at "San Antonio," a good old Western done in lovely Technicolor, now playing at the Met.

For many years it has been an axiom that city folks were too sophisticated for the horse opera, but that it was fine for the village dwellers. It is significant, however, that the Westerns have consistently made money without Broadway openings, and that their stars have a following which many an A picture star might envy.

The obvious enjoyment of the Met audience yesterday would indicate that the city slickers, many of whom came from the hinterlands anyhow, do like the traditional western, with the fearless, straight-shooting hero, the blackhearted villain and the beautiful heroine.

It undoubtedly isn't art, but a great many movie patrons aren't concerned with art so much as with entertainment. This kind of film entertains, does not one any harm, and is a fairly accurate, if romanticized, picture of a period in United States history.

'Lute Song' Tickets On Sale at Shubert

Tickets are now on sale at the Shubert boxoffice for the three-week engagement of the Mary Martin-starring play with music, "Lute Song," opening at that theater on Tuesday night. "Lute Song" will be the fourth attraction on the American Theater Society-Theater Guild schedule.

Tunney Says Joe Louis Will Stop Billy Conn

By JACK CONWAY

JOE LOUIS will knock Billy Conn out inside of a round in their world's heavyweight championship bout next June, Gene Tunney, former world's title holder, told this writer during a conversation at his suite at the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Tunney made a special trip to Boston on the invitation of Cardinal-elect Francis J. Spellman to speak at the Alfred E. Smith dinner at the Hotel Statler.

Gene Tunney

"I consider Louis one of the greatest champions in the history of the ring," said Tunney. "Joe had an off night when Billy Conn went 13 rounds with him. I expect Louis to be in better condition when he clashes with Conn next time. I do not think the bout will go more than a round.

"Since Conn lost to Louis, he has fought Tony Zale and his father-in-law. Zale gave Conn a hard fight, while Conn yelled for help from the police when his father-in-law opened fire on him.

"I do not think Conn is much of a fighter. They tell me that Conn now weighs 191 pounds. That means he will have less chance of winning against the Brown Bomber. Conn is a speed fighter and the more he weighs the poorer he will fight.

"Louis has proved himself a worthy champion. He has successfully defended his title 21 times. Before Joe's second bout with Max Schmeling I advised him to belt the German on the kidneys if Max turned his back on him. When Schmeling turned around, Louis hit Max so hard on his body that he broke one of his ribs.

"I have studied Conn's boxing style, and I could tell Louis how he could knock him out quickly. Louis is a great puncher and he has the necessary fistic tools to conquer Conn who is hot-headed and an unfinished boxer."

Praises Jack Dempsey

THE GREATEST name athlete in the world in the opinion of Tunney is Jack Dempsey from whom he won the world's heavyweight championship in a bout in Philadelphia.

"Dempsey's name is magic everywhere," said Tunney. "I do not believe there is an athlete in the world who has the same hold on the public as the old Manassa Mauler.

"I hope that Dempsey in the future will keep his name from commercial propositions. He means too much to the youth of the public to be associated with anything that is not accepted by the people with the best interest of our country at heart.

"I walked away from the liquor business because I thought that I was being commercialized. I was chairman of the board of a large liquor concern at the time. I acted in a financial capacity, but I was fearful that the fact I was in the Navy was being commercialized. I sold 9000 shares of stock in the company for $81,000 which are now worth $1,600,000. I do regret I passed up more money than I got for fighting Jack Dempsey twice.

"I have done all right in business. I have been fortunate to have owned one block of stock that has had a substantial rise."

Weighs Only 203

Tunney interrupted our talk to take a shower. After stepping from under the shower, Gene asked:

"How much do you think I weigh?"

Tunney answered the question himself.

"Only 203 pounds. Just 13 pounds more than when I first fought Dempsey. I weighed 215 pounds when in the Navy, but I have since taken off weight."

Tunney believes in walking and regular exercise whether it is golf, tennis or some other sport.

"Regardless of age one should exercise regularly," said Gene.

Tunney plans to build $5000 to $10,000 homes in Connecticut for returning veterans.

"I have the option on a large tract of land," said Gene, "and I am associated with a man who knows the building business. I built up the veterans during the war, and I now want to build houses for them."

H. C. Win Thrills 12,483

By HERB FINNEGAN

Basketball at long last has reached adulthood in Boston. Never was it proved more conclusively than last night at the Garden where Holy Cross edged Bowling Green 69-63 and Villanova outdueled Boston College 38-34 before 12,483 spectators, largest basketball gathering in N. E.'s history.

That is, 12,483 sat in on the HC-BG game. So fast and pulsating was the play that the BC-Villanova game was, of necessity, anticlimactic. So the crowd dwindled gradually.

HC is the darling of the town. It played such bangup ball against Dartmouth Dec. 21 that a big house was assured last night. But not even the Garden was prepared for the throngs that attempted to see last night's twin bill. Prospective customers, jockeyed in the lobby, went home without purchasing tickets. It looked like a Louis-Conn crowd.

HC was great again. Dermot O'Connell, George Kaftan, Charlie Bollinger, Ken Haggerty, Joe Mullaney and Ed Krause provided thrill after thrill. Their fancy passing and shooting had the gallery shrieking all night. They took the lead early in the game and held it throughout. They took good care of Don Otten, 6-11 Bowling Green center.

It was an HC house. There was even a cheer leader down from Worcester leading the "Hiyas." The alumni were out in force. The dressing room after the game was thronged as if the football team had just won a Bowl game.

Old-time greats like Fiddle Morley and Smokey Kelleher were in their element. "Best thing ever seen in the town," they agreed.

"As good as you'll find anywhere," said referee Eddie Boyle, who has officiated in national collegiate championships.

Yes, this HC five, coached by Doggie Julian, has put basketball over here with a bang. It may not draw a full house next week when it plays BC because it seems to carry too much class for the neophyte Eagles, but it will pack 'em to the rafters when it takes on high scoring R. I. State at the Garden Jan. 24.

The fans like high scoring games, and HC and R. I. State are always scoring.

The drouth is at an end. Basketball is firmly established as a major sport here—at least while the Crusaders are playing.

"Best team I ever faced," said Ken Haggerty, jubilant HC guard of the Bowling Green team . . . Don Otten dropped into the HC room to congratulate the players individually . . . "We weren't hitting," said BG Coach Harold Anderson. "We were rather tired from our busy schedule" . . .

Freshman Gene Dudley, scoring 22 points, was a fire-horse in the last half for Bowling Green. The game was so close at all times that the result was in doubt until Dermut O'Connell stole the ball from Dudley near game's end and sank the "clincher" . . . Julian let his boys watch half of the BC-Villanova game, then shooed them home. "We have a hard game with Harvard Saturday night," he warned his boys. "Let's get our rest" . . . Julian actually smiled after the game but he still kept saying: "We have 11 more games to go." Tell him his team looks as if it will remain undefeated and he hits the roof . . . It is a soundly-coached team . . . HC scoring: O'Connell 12 points, Kaftan 13, Bollinger 15, Krause 5 (first half only), Haggerty 11, Mullaney 13. All team play there and no individual glory-seekers . . . BC led Villanova with 8 minutes to go. Then the Wildcats tied it at 26-all and went on from there . . . The Eagles didn't click so well after Sharry went on by the foul route . . . Bollinger of HC may have broken his finger near the close of the game. He was rushed to a Worcester hospital for X-rays.

Williams Out

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 11 (AP)—Lt. Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox star outfielder, was slated for release from the Marine Corps today.

Ted entered service at the close of the 1943 season after attaining rank with the greatest hitters of baseball history during his career with the Red Sox.

He became a Navy flier and was assigned to the Marine Corps as a flying instructor.

WEINTRAUB RELEASED

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (INS)—The New York Giants released two ball players today. They are Steve Filipowicz, former football star, and Phil Weintraub, who finished last season with Newark but still was New York property.

Bruins Outplay Wings But Bow

By BILL GRIMES

With less than 10 minutes to play last night in Detroit, the injury-riddled Bruins were leading the Red Wings, 1 to 0, and Frankie Brimsek was on his way to first shutout since coming out of the service. Then, the Rossmen's defense parted at the seams. Bill Quackenbush caromed the tieing goal into the nets off Mike McMahon's skate and 41 seconds later, Harry Watson scored what proved to be the winning marker.

The Bruins outplayed the Red Wings all the way. But, like all clubs in a slump, they didn't get enough favorable breaks.

Coach "Dit" Clapper used a make shift lineup. He had Terry Reardon centering for Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart, used Jack McGill between Herbie Cain, who was at right wing, and little Kenny Smith and on the defense he alternated Mike McMahon with Jack Crawford and Murray Henderson.

The Bruins are laying over in Detroit today and will not be home until tomorrow morning. They've had a disastrous trip, losing to Montreal, Rangers and Detroit, along with the services of Bill Cowley and Milt Schmidt.

The Toronto Maple Leafs broke a five game losing streak last night, when they turned back Les Canadiens 5 to 4 in Montreal. Paul Bibeault, who had performed so sensationally for the Bruins, was in the nets for the Flying Frenchmen. Even with that supposedly great outer defense combinations protecting him, Bibeault was not up to the standard he set with the Bruins, since Frankie Brimsek put in an appearance.

The Maple Leafs beat Mons. Paul for five goals in the first two periods while Frank "Ulcers" McCool held the Frenchmen to two tallies in the first and third stanza.

Canadiens Miss Chance To Cinch First Place

The stock of the Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League race was lowered a peg today.

Last night Les Canadiens had a chance to take undisputed possession of first place. But they lost to the Maple Leafs, 5 to 4, and remained tied with Chicago for first place.

Davidson led Toronto to victory. He had two goals and an assist.

Malden Track Grabs School Spotlight

By MIKE GILLGOLY

Track will pop a surprisingly popular head into the sports scene for the first time this season tomorrow afternoon with over 300 individual entries moving into the Marshall Gymnasium, Malden, to steal their share of headlines from the four regularly scheduled hockey sessions at the Garden, Arena and Skating Club.

There'll be 13 events on the track program, five of these handed over to the schoolboys with 19 schools responding to the first tests.

LaSalle High of Providence, R. I., and neighbors Hope st., Barrington, Cranston and North Providence will make up the scholastic entries from Little Rhody. Bay State schools in the running will include B. C. High, Dedham, St. Mary's of Waltham, East Boston, Malden, Rindge Tech, Medford, Lowell, Weymouth, Everett, St. John's of Danvers, Roxbury Memorial, Arlington and Boston Latin.

Schoolboy events will include: 30-yard dash, featuring Ed Bagdanovich of LaSalle and 18 entries from Rindge; 40-yard low hurdles with gridder Jack Casey of B. C. High entered; 300-yard run, sparked by the clever Dick Liva of Weymouth High; a wide open 600-yarder and an equally seeded field in the 1000.

Boston English High's former star, Dave Krivitsky, now at Worcester Academy, and Boston College's Gil Walker will feature the open events.

The outstanding hockey game in the 15 scheduled will take place at the Arena tomorrow afternoon when Boston College high school's sextet will attempt to stop the drive of Waltham to the Bay State League championship. The Eaglets, under Coach Johnnie Temple, are the most improved hockey team of the season and a dangerous scoring crew paced by the speedy Warren Lewis.

Other Bay State tilts pit Watertown against Norwood; Framingham against Needham, deadlocked for first place, and Wellesley against Walpole.

At the Garden, the Greater Bostons will get off to a 12:30 start so that they'll be cleared away in plenty of time for the Bruins game at night. And that opener there should pack the big punch for the afternoon with Melrose in the same position as B. C. H. in squaring off against the undefeated Rindge Tech outfit, featuring Len Gagnon, Dick Briand and Al Robichaud on a high-flying first line.

Other GBI contests match: Belmont vs. Medford; Arlington vs. Newton and Stoneham vs. Cambridge Latin.

The Eastern Mass. program at the Arena tomorrow night pairs: Brookline vs. Natick; Dedham vs. Malden; Lexington vs. Somerville and Hudson vs. Wakefield. The Catholic Leaguers, at the Skating club at night, find St. Sebastian's tangling with St. Clement's; St. Mary's of Lynn facing St. Mary's of Waltham and St. Patrick's meeting Malden Catholic in the wind-up of the first half of the schedule.

Derby Entries Again Are Urged

With the closing date for entries for the Silver Skates Derby less than a week away, old familiar names are beginning to appear in the various classes.

In yesterday's batch from the postman were those of the four Blackman youngsters from Wilmington and the two Fox girls from Lynn for the annual classic at the Garden on Jan. 27.

Veteran Derbyites are the Blackmans, Carl age 12, Janet age 1, Knute age 10 and Leon the baby at 9 years. This will be the seventh Derby for Carl and the sixth for Janet while the other two will toe the mark for the fifth time in the gala event. Considering their ages that is rather an amazing record.

In last year's classic, the Blackman younger generation just about stole the show. Little Janet, who had won the midget title in 1944 and was thus forced to move up one class and compete against girls many years her senior, finished a very creditable second in the Juvenile Division. Over on the "men's" side, Carl, Knute and little Leon entered their names in the Derby history book by finishing one-two-three in the Midget Division finals.

Peggy Ann Fox and her sister Joan, age 12 and 11 respectively, are right alongside the Blackman's in tradition. Last year Peggy Ann won—the midget crown and this year moves up one class. Little Joanie, still eligible for that division, is hopeful of keeping the title in the family.

Entries were received yesterday from:

Leo Hall, Jr., Providence, R. I.; Marjorie V. Oberlander, Dorchester; Eddie Lederman, Revere; Richard H. Murphy, South Boston; Ida Daniels, Brighton; Augustus Detato, Wilmington; Karl Detato, Wilmington; Ann MacRae, Mattapan; Richard Della Russo, Stoneham; Kenneth William Ross, Roslindale; Paul J. Lillis, Charlestown; Paul J. Andrews, Belmont; Nancy Lee Chase, Everett; Robert A. Swanbon, Roslindale; Robert Cleary, Melrose; Carl Backman, Wilmington; Janet Backman, Wilmington; Knute Backman, Wilmington; Leon Backman, Wilmington; Peggy Ann Fox, Lynn, and Joan Fox, Lynn.

Longden Pilots Fiddle Toward 4th Money Spot

ARCADIA, Cal., Jan. 11 (AP)—First Fiddle and Johnny Longden—two of turfdom's top figures—rate as the team to beat in tomorrow's $50,000-added San Pasqual Handicap at Santa Anita Park. Some 10 competitors, topped by Mrs. A. L. Rice's Sirde, promise to make it a close race over the mile and one-sixteenth route, but First Fiddle, Mrs. Ed Mulrenan's 7-year-old gray, is the horse to watch.

The "Gray Ghost" currently ranks 10th among the world's all-time money winners with $325,385. Victory tomorrow—worth at least $40,190 if 10 start—would zoom him to fourth position, behind Whirlaway, Seabiscuit and Sun Beau.

As for Longden, he set a new jockey record by winning $981,977 in purses during 1945

January Thaw Is Skiing Hindrance

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Ol' Man January Thaw has stripped most of the winter underwear from slopes and trails, leaving skiers in a quandary about conditions. However, although reports are discouraging, remember that this is New England, where we have weather aplenty—and the week-end may bring tons of powder!

Herb Baldwin, publicity director of the Boston & Maine R. R., tells us that the Sunday Snow Train, scheduled to run to North Conway, N. H., has been cancelled, due to insufficient cover. But those who venture north in search of the elusive white substance may have the laugh on the stay-at-homes; it happens every time!

The future Snow Trains will depart from the Eastern Slopes Region earlier, it has also been announced . . . They will continue to leave the North Station at 8:10 a. m., and Reading at 8:25 a. m., but coming back, trains will roll out of Intervale at 5 o'clock and North Conway at 5:10 p. m. . . . Until the days lengthen, the slopes on Cranmore Mt. close at 4:15 p. m., and the new earlier departure time will still suit skiers, in addition to getting them home nearly two hours sooner.

SKI SCRIBBLINGS: The first collegiate ski meet of the season, set for Big Bromley, Vt., tomorrow and Sunday, has been cancelled, for more heavenly tapioca is needed. The meet was to have been a three cornered affair, between Middlebury, University of New Hampshire, and Dartmouth . . . These three teams will be seen in action, Jan. 18-20, at Middlebury, where the 15th annal Middlebury College Winter Carnival will be conducted . . . Other teams competing in this ski-fest include those from West Point, Tufts, Rensselaer Poly Tech, Vermont, Amherst, and Williams . . . Nine women's college ski teams will also fly their hickories through the flags on Bread Loaf Mountain . . .

Doug Burckett sends word that an interesting exhibition of old and rare volumes on the ancient art of skiing may be viewed daily at the Widener Library, at Harvard . . . Maybe we can learn some new turns from these books!

Middleweight Bout on WCOP Tonight

Jake LaMotta (above), Bronx block-buster, squares off against Tommy Bell, rangy sharpshooter of Youngstown, Ohio, at Madison Square Garden tonight. This middleweight contest, scheduled to go ten rounds, is a re-match.

Jawbone Jake has won 10 out of 12 bouts during the past year, his only losses coming at the hands of Ray Robinson. Last July he annexed a verdict from Bell, who can box handsomely as well as sock. So Tommy is out for revenge and hopes to be the first fighter to kayo LaMotta.

Bell is a powerful puncher. His left hook is particularly sharp and spectacular. The scrap promises to be a slam-bang affair.

Enjoy the excitement, blow-by-blow, on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports over American Broadcasting Co. and WCOP (1150 on your dial) at 10 p. m.

And remember, men . . . LOOK sharp! FEEL sharp! BE sharp! Use Gillette Blue Blades with the sharpest edges ever honed!

Rain Suspends N. O. Race Meet

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (AP)—Racing was cancelled at New Orleans for the remainder of the week yesterday due to the sloppy condition of the track following an all-day rain. It will be resumed Tuesday.

The feature race resulted in a spill in which three jockeys were injured. Apprentice Harold Wallace, riding Border Scout and who had ridden three winners before the accident, and Jack Fliter, riding Forevic, were taken to Charity Hospital for observation. Jockey Bill Bass, riding Try Flying, did not require medical attention. Forevic suffered a broken shoulder and had to be destroyed.

Valdina Clown, second choice in the betting, went on to win the six furlong sprint in 1:21 3-5. He paid $7.80.

LaMotta Tackles Bell in NY Garden

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (INS)—Jake LaMotta, slugging New York middleweight, will attempt to extend his string of knockouts at Madison Square Garden tonight when he meets Tommy Bell, of Youngstown, O., in a return 10-round bout. Lamotta is a 13 to 5 favorite.

Last July, LaMotta scored a close decision over Bell. Since then, he has won five out of six bouts by a knockout.

GI Gripes—Now that the war is over, high-point soldiers want to get home as soon as possible, and their "gripes" are causing reverberations all over the world. This group, at Ft. Ephedrine Aids Horse Says Vet

NEW YORK, Jan. (AP)—A youthful veterinarian for the jockey club testified at the hearing of Trainer Tom Smith's appeal today that experiments on 11 different horses had shown the drug ephedrine to be a powerful stimulant when administered nasally.

Smith, trainer for Maine Chance Farms, is appealing his one-year suspension on the charge that a horse of his stable, Magnifie Duel, was sprayed in the nostrils with ephedrine before a race at Jamaica last Nov. 1. A five-man board representing the jockey Club and the state racing commission is hearing the appeal.

Today's witness, Dr. M. A. Gilman, who was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania last May, presented a long and detailed analysis of his findings, all to the effect that an atomixer-full of ephedrine increased a horse's blood pressure as well as the rate and depth of respiration.

Agawam Protests Proposal to Sell

The town of Agawam today entered a protest to the proposal of Charles F. Connors, trustee in bankrupty of the Agawam race track property, asking Referee Author L. Black to authorize sale of the property.

Special Town Counsel Donald M. MacAuley told Referee Black in a hearing at the Federal building that the town objected to the proposed sale, asserting that Agawam is the actual owner of the property through foreclosure.

8 Rules Changes For Grid Pros

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (AP)—Club owners in the National Football League today approved eight changes in their rules for the 1946 season.

The major ones are:

Only three substitutes may enter the game at a time. Under old rule 11 players might be substituted at a time if the coach desired.

A forward pass thrown from the end zone that strikes a goal post will be an incompleted forward pass.

A fourth down fumble within a defensive team's 10-yard line may be advanced only by the defensive team or by the player on offense who fumbid. If any other player recovers, play will be resumed at spot of the fumble.

In blocking on offense the player's arm not in contact with his opponent may hang free. Previously both arms of the offensive blocker had to be in contact with his own body.

William M. Coffman, managing director of the game, which ended in a 7-7 tie, said the profits for the hospital fund set a record. Gross ticket sales were $163,262. Revenue from ticket [illegible] and programs.
